The following is extracted from a letter I recently received. Since the Civil War was the bloodiest war ever fought in this country, I found it extremely interesting.

From the Veterans Administration

Dear Mrs. Berry:

Thank you very much for your letter.

The Veterans Administration only provides headstones or grave markers of veterans who served during wartime or peacetime service (other than for training), who were discharged under conditions other than dis-honorable and are buried in a private cemetery. The Civil War was not a recognized wartime period.

Sincerely, yours.
Charles R. Rikeys
Veterans Services Officer

My letter to them was written because I had noticed the Civil War Graves, other than in National Cemeteries, were evidently only erected by the family--be it Union or Rebel; and many of the Civil War Veterans--Union or Rebel--have no grave markers.
