INTRODUCTION

At the beginning of the time period covered by this volume, there were five newspapers being published in Holton, The Holton Weekly Recorder, The Holton Weekly Signal, Normal Advocate, University Informer, and the Independent Tribune, which underwent a minor name change to the Tribune on March 10, 1893. The Kansas Sunflower began publication on December 19, 1895.

In Soldier, the Clipper became the Soldier Clipper on February 9, 1893.

In Circleville, the Kansas Bazaar ceased publication on August 3, 1893, the Circleville Kicker began publication on November 22, 1894 and ceased on November 12, 1896. The Circleville News began publication on November 26, 1896.

In Whiting, the Whiting Weekly News ceased its publication March 18, 1893, but the Sun newspaper soon replaced it on August 17, 1894.

In Netawaka, the Netawaka Star, lasted from April 7, 1892 to December 21, 1894. The Netawaka Herald began publication on July 31, 1896.

In Soldier, the Soldier Clipper began publication on February 9, 1893,

In Denison, the Journal began publication on November 14, 1895, and ceased July 9, 1896.

In Hoyt, the Journal, having moved from Denison began on July 30, 1896, running through December 31, 1896. For a short time period, August 27, 1896 - September 3, 1896, it was known as the Hoyt Journal.

As noted in the previous volumes, not every death reported in these newspapers is included in this book, only those seeming to have some connection with Jackson county. A death notice could appear in different newspapers and from different sources within a paper. One principal notice is listed with excerpts from other accounts being used only when there is differing or additional information. Accolades to the deceased success as a christian, parent and citizen have been deleted when possible, because of space consideration. Three ellipses denote the deletion of part of a sentence and four that of a sentence or even paragraphs.

Each death notice is numbered consecutively and it is this number that appears in the index, not the page number. This is an all surname index that I hope will help the researcher identify family relationships that otherwise would be hidden. The index begins on page 549.

As with any book of this type there have been mistakes made in transferring the information from the newspapers to book form, If you believe there should be a death notice for your ancestor and it is not included, or other information is not correct, please check the original newspapers for that time period.

2192. George Bozarth Clark was born in Lewis county Virginia, April 16, 1816. Mr. Clark was converted and joined the Methodist church early in life, in his 18th year, and remained a consistent member of the church for 50 years, till the day of his death, which occurred at his home with his son, Dan. W. Clark, in Jackson county, Kansas, May 10, 1893. George B. Clark married Matilda Stone, who survives him, in 1842. Mother Clark, too, has been a member of the church more than half a century. To them were born nine children, three sons and six daughters, all of whom are living but two daughters. Father Clark lived all his life in northwestern Virginia, until 1880, with his family, he moved to this county, where he has since resided The following historical items in early settlement among the wild Indians in the then wild west, handed me from a book on "Border Warfare," relative to Mr. Clark's ancestors, will be read with interest; dates are not at hand: The middle name, Bozarth, of Mr. Clark, is for his mothers family name. "In northwestern Virginia, now Upshur county, West Virginia, the savages rushed into the home of the Bozarth family, (great grandfather of G. B. Clark) seized a child, dashed its brains out against the door, took the mother, infant and two sons prisoners, and brained a daughter in the yard. In the affray, George Bozarth (grandfather of the subject of this memoir) met an Indian in some tall weeds. The Indian made ready to fire, and Mr, Bozarth, watching the motions of the Indian's arms, dropped down like he was dead as he saw the Indian ready to fire, He then crawled away unhurt and made his escape. After a few days of hard travel for the prisoners, the infant was taken from its mother's arms and its life dashed out against a tree. At night as the mother put her bare feet to the fire to warm an Indian laid the infant's scalp across its mother's foot. She was tied to a tree and faggots piled around to burn her. She raised her eyes to heaven and earnestly prayed, received a blessing, and shouted, "Glory." The Indians were awestricken, and untying her, gave her and her sons the liberty of the camp, and for two years she was treated with reverence. They were then released and started for their home in Virginia. In crossing the Ohio river in a canoe one son was drowned. The mother and remaining son reached home in safety to their family that for two years had mourned them as dead." The Holton Weekly Recorder, May 18, 1893.

2303. A Fragment of History. From the Wetmore Spectator O... The war was at its bitterest point. Alternate union and confederate success had aroused to a pitch of uncontrollable frenzy, the feelings of the sympathizers of the different causes. At this momentous period, a boy of perhaps eighteen years, who had served for some time in the confederate army, returned on a furlough to his home in Jackson county, Kansas While the young confederate [Eden] was in Holton, a union soldier, considerably under the influence of liquor seemed determined to pick a quarrel with him, but the confederate soldier attempted to avoid a contest. A few hours after he came to Eureka, on the parallel, a short distance north of Holton, and about seven miles southwest of Wetmore. The man who attempted to quarrel with him at Holton followed him and aggravated him that a fight

2303. (cont'd) was the result in which the confederate used a knife with such telling affect that the aggressor was supposed to have been mortally wounded .0.. The boy was apprehended and his doom ... was soon sealed after a prayer for his soul's eternal welfare delivered by P. B. Rust, one George Travis led the horse from under him and his body was left writhing and dangling from the tree The Holton Weekly Signal, January 10, 1894.

2382. Clinton C. Osbon Shoots Down Chas. B. Hamble in Broad Daylight on the Street
Chas. B. Hamble and his brother, John, left the courtroom when court adjourned, between five and six o'clock, and on their bicycles started to their home in the Orchard Grove addition, on Topeka avenue. Near Mr. Tucker's residence they met a team which got scared at the bicycles, and the two men dismounted and were walking rolling the bicycles by their side. In the road just west of Tucker's Osbon stepped out from near the bridge, where he had evidently been waiting, and with a double barreled shot gun in his hands, held in a threatening way, ordered them to halt. Here, it is reported, Osbon charged Hamble with betraying and ruining his daughter, Stella, under promise of marriage, and declared that unless repartition was made by marriage he would kill him. Hamble most emphatically denied the charge and refused to consent to marry the girl, but said he would accompany Osbon to the doctors office or anyplace he (Osbon) might designate and have the matter investigated and prove his innocence. To this Osbon seems to agree, and ordered the Hambles to march ahead of him. To this Hamble objected, saying he would go with him, but would die before he would march through town with a gun drawn on him. This about ended the parlay which had 2382. (con.t^vd) continued for five or ten minutes, and Osbon fired, both barrels of his gun being discharged at once, and both charges entering the unfortunate man's right breast and neck, killing him almost instantly the sad and mournful procession wended its solemn way to the cemetery west of town C. B. Hamble was about thirty years of age. He was educated in the public schools of Atchison county and attended two or three years at Mrs. Monroe's school at Atchison. After his Atchison schooling he went to the Michigan State University at Ann Arbor, where he graduated from the law department of that institution. He came to Holton some seven years ago and commenced the practice of law The deceased leaves three brothers and one sister. One of the brothers, John, lives here; one, Jack, at Valley Falls; one, whose name we do not know, resides in the southwestern part of the state. The sister, Minnie, is well known in this community. The Holton Weekly Recorder, June 21, 1894.

.... Mr. Hamble was born December 5, 1864, in Hamilton county, Indiana, and moved to Norton township, Jefferson county, Kansas, in the year 1878. 2414. Another has been added to the long list of horrors resulting from the careless use of kerosene. Last Friday evening, while lighting the kitchen fire, Miss May White spilled some on her dress and the fire puffed out and caught her clothing. Instantly she was enveloped in flames and ran out of the house screaming. Her brother heard her and emptied the contents of a tub of water over her, extinguishing the fire, but not before she had been terribly burned from her throat to her knees At the time of her death May White was but twenty-two years of age. She received her education in the public schools and was graduated from them with the class of 1891. She afterwards took a course in stenography and typewriting, but was prevented by the illness of her mother from working at it steadily. During the past four years her mother has been an invalid, and May has devoted herself untiringly to the care of her and her younger brothers and sisters 2425. G. P. Wing, of Jefferson township died early Thursday morning The Holton Weekly Recorder, October 18, 1894.

The subject of this memoir was born in Montgomery county, New York, September 3, 1836, and died October 11, 1894, aged 58 years, 1 month and 8 days. The cause of the death was a fall received while working on a barn on the farm of Mr. John Bernard, falling a distance of over thirty feet He grew to manhood in his native town, and on arriving at his majority, he, like many other pushing, energetic boys, left home and friends and set out for what was called in those days, the distant west. In the spring of 1858 he arrived in Henry county, Ill., and began ... to make for himself a future house. In the spring of 1861 He enlisted in Co. D, 17th Illinois Infantry, and hastened to the front to do or die, if need be, that his country might be saved. Before his time expired he enlisted for three years, or during the war. In the memorable battle of Donaldson, on account of exposure and injuries received, he was sent to the hospital, unfit for service. At the battle of Shiloh, contrary to the orders of his captain, he followed his regiment into the fight, but owing to his weak condition, he was found after the battle, by himself in a tent, more dead than alive, was taken back to the hospital and was nursed back to life again by the faithful nurse of the regiment, Mrs. Cunningham .., Not being able to do active service, in October following, against his own wish, was given his discharge, and lived many years to suffer from the effects of his service ... On the 16th day of June, 1864, he was united in marriage to Anna Jackson, of Cambridge, Ill. Seven children were born to them, the oldest being taken by death when but a few months old. In 1867 they removed to Iowa and settled near Prairie City, Jasper county. They remained there a number of years. Nine years ago this fall they came to this place and have remained here ever since. He leaves behind the wife ... the children The Holton Weekly Recorder, October 25, 1894.

R. M. Cook, one of the pioneers of Jackson county, died at his home in this city, Friday, May 3, 1895, aged fifty-nine years. His funeral, which was conducted by the Masonic fraternity, and attended by W. W. Post, G.A.R., of which he was a member Richard M. Cook was born in New Brunswick, N.J., October 4, 1836. He passed the early years of his life in his native state, and in his eighteenth year emigrated with his parents to Wisconsin, and resided there with them in their home in that pioneer state until 1857, when he, too, became a pioneer, having come by team, in company with his friend, John Dixon, and settled in what is now Grant township, Jackson county. He claimed and purchased of the government a tract of land there which he subsequently improved and occupied from the close of the war until 1870, when he established his home in Holton. Before coming to Kansas Mr. Cook was a graduate from Richter's Preparatory school in New York City. In connection with the overland freighting enterprise he crossed the plains in 1860 and again in the spring of 1861. Returning early that summer he found a state of actual war near the Kansas border, and he believed it to be his duty to enter the Union army, and in August of that year he enlisted in Company C, 7th Regiment, Kansas Volunteer Cavalry. He served honorably during the war and then returned to his home in this county and devoted his time to farming and teaching. He was married in 1867, in this county, to Miss Lucinda E. Harris, a native of Wisconsin. To them came three children - Harry, Emma and Kate. Death entered this family for the first time some three months ago, when Emma preceded her father to the spirit land, In 1868 Mr. Cook was elected county superintendent of county schools and was subsequently several times re-elected His last service in this line was as superintendent of the Indian schools at the Pottawatomie agency in this county The Holton Recorder, May 9, 1895, (cont'd)

2650. Another Tragedy That Ends in Murder Samuel Newman, who lives some six or seven miles west of Holton, it seems, suspected Charley Hoover, of this city, of being on terms of undue intimacy with his wife. On last Thursday Newman left home, informing his wife that he was going to Denison to be absent a couple of days. On the same day Hoover received a note informing him of her husbands absence and inviting him to call that evening. There is some dispute as to the exact time that Sam Newman and his brother Jim arrived and broke open the door and entered the residence. Mrs. Newman says that it was between seven and eight o'clock - the Newmans say it was later - and found Chas. Hoover sitting on the floor by the stove and Mrs. Newman sitting on a chair holding her baby. It is evident that the hostilities commenced at once they found Hoover's body in the yard, some ten feet from the door, lying on his face. He evidently came to his death from a bullet fired from the Winchester rifle which was found in the room where Sam Newman was sleeping Chas. Hoover, the murdered man, was about thirty years of age. He is the son of ex-postmaster Hoover and has lived in this city most of the time for the past ten years. Samuel Newman, charged with the murder, is also about thirty years of age and is a nephew of A. F. Newman, the stock dealer, and S. Newman, the merchant. He is also a son-in-law of the latter, having married his daughter, Stella, some five years ago, and has three children. He is a farmer and lives some seven miles west of this city, The Holton Recorder, October 24, 1895.

2719. William Thornton Scott was born in Jassamine county, Kentucky, April 8th, 1812 and died in Holton, Kansas, February 10th, 1896, aged eighty-three years, ten months and two days. The parents of Mr. Scott, Samuel and Martha Scott, were Virginians and immigrated to Kentucky in 1774, when that now fair country was known as the "dark and bloody ground," on account of the almost daily conflicts between the settlers and the Indians. Mr. Scott well remembered hearing his mother tell of taking refuge from threatened Indian ravages, in the fort of Boonesboro, with the celebrated frontiersman and Indian fighter, Daniel Boone. Mr. W. T. Scott came to his well known and intense patriotism, honestly. His father, though but fifteen years old, was one of the band of patriots that fought at the battle of King's Mountain, and vanquished the proud Britain, Col. Fergeson, and drove the invaders from North Carolina. Mr. Scott was the youngest of fifteen children, who, remarkable to relate, all grew to man and womanhood; and a number of whom lived to extreme age. It has been only a little over a year when a sister died in Missouri at the age of ninety-four, and some two or three months ago he received word of the death of his last remaining sister at Knobnoster, Missouri, aged eighty-six. Mr. Scott received what education was available to boys in his station in Kentucky, and although he did not receive a degree, he fitted himself to teach and was for several years a successful teacher. In 1834 he was married to Sarah A. Sellers, of Versailles, Kentucky, with whom he lived in perfect happiness fifty-three years, and to whom were born seven children. Of these, one Wallace, preceded the mother and father to the "better land," Those that remain are Joseph A., Samuel H. T., Dr. John T. and Frank S. Scott, and Mrs. M. H. Beck and Mrs. Martha A. Hand, all of whom, with a number of his grandchildren, were at his bedside when the last summons came. In the year 1836, Mr. and Mrs. Scott moved to Putnam county, Indiana, where they lived until 1870, when they came to Holton, where they have since resided

The deceased joined the Presbyterian church at the age of twenty-one and was a faithful, zealous, devoted member of the same for sixty-three years, and for fifty-three years held the office of ruling elder in the church. He was a delegate to three general assemblies of the church, one at Wilmington, Delaware in 1859; one at Brooklyn in 1865 and another in Brooklyn in 1876, ... The deceased was an enthusiastic member of the order of the Sons of the Revolution The pall bearers were his four sons mentioned above, and two grandsons, Fred Scott and Will Beck The Holton Recorder, February 13, 1896.

He was of Virginia stock, his parents having emigrated from that state to Kentucky in 1784, ... 2913. "One of the greatest catastrophes in the history of Whatcom county occurred about two miles north of Lynden on Wednesday night, which has resulted in four deaths. It seems that Mr. and Mrs. John F. Miller were attending a political demonstration in New Whatcom on Wednesday, and had left their five children at the home in charge of Frank Boies. Mr. Boies is a resident of Tacoma and was sending a few days at the Miller place. Boies and the children had retired early

As near as can be ascertained the fire caught from the stove. Boles was awakened by the dense smoke and could not readily reach the outside door so broke the window and took the smallest boy to a place of safety. Returning to the house, he pushed through the flames, and picking up one of the girls, carried her outside. The child was considerably burned and her case is serious. Boles clothing was burning by this time and the house was all in flames. Above the roar of the burning building could be heard the heartrending cries of the children. This appeal did not go unheeded, but the effort resulted in the death of the gallant man who faced death to help the suffering. He dashed through the doorway, which was a mass of fire, and across the burning floor. Evidently one of the boards of the floor was burned so that it would not sustain a man's weight, and part of the floor gave way. Boles could not extricate himself at once, and before he could do so, was horribly burned Boies then left the burning building and started to procure help for the little girl who was burned. He then returned to the scene of the fire and became exhausted and delirious with pain ... He died at 10:45

Boles is a married man and has two children. He resides at 1109 North j street, Tacoma. He had no insurance. His wife was notified

Frank Boles is well known all over the state. He traveled for some years for a blank book factory and was well known in Tacoma. He was a local politician of prominence." - New Whatcom, Washington, Leader Frank Boies, the subject of the above sketch, is a brother of A. Boles, of this city, and a son of John Boles, of Hoyt, Kansas. He at one time lived in Douglas township, this county, with his father, and was well acquainted with many of our citizens. He taught school in Douglas township several years. He left for the west in 1886, and has lived in Washington since then. He was thirty-eight years old and leaves a wife and two children. 2958. Carl. December 28, 1896. Mr. Price died at F. Ramage's last evening. They will hold an inquest tomorrow.

The shooting scrape in the west part of the county, to which The Recorder referred last week, has turned out to be a serious matter. The victim of the shot, James P. Price, is dead, and the man who did the shooting is under bond to appear before Geo. H. Barker next Monday to answer to the charge of murder. James P. Price died last Monday, and a coroner's inquest held Tuesday developed the fact that he died of gunshot wounds received at the hands of R. R. Boan. It appears from the evidence elicited at the inquest that when Boan returned from his hunt he found Price in the house with the door bolted. When they refused to unbolt the door he fired through it, and it was this shot that nearly severed the arm from the body. As Price was running from the house Boan fired another charge, some of it penetrating Prices's back and neck. Boan came in Tuesday and gave himself up to the sheriff, Price was an ex-Union soldier, and had been an inmate of the Iowa soldier's home. He was about 52 years of age. Boan had been married to the woman about ten years, and there is a report abroad that she and her former husband were working for Boan, who was a widow at that time, and her husband becoming dissatisfied with the conduct of his wife, left her. Soon after she got a divorce and married Boan. The Holton Recorder, December 31, 1896.
