Dade County, Missouri, was organized in accordance with an act of the General Assembly of the State of Missouri, approved January 29, 1841, and an act supplemental thereto, approved February 15, 1841. The county was formed from what was Greene County. The original county extended nine miles south of its present southern boundary and ten miles north of its present northern boundary. The county was reduced to its present limits March 28, 1846. The Courthouse at Greenfield was destroyed October 6, 1864, along with most of its records.

This index of marriage records is taken from Book A(1), Book 1, Book 3 (actually all three in one binding); and Book 4. The records date from 1863 to 1873. Book 3 has three marriage entries of colored persons that were scratched out with the notation "Erroneous Entry!" These have been included separately on pages 62 and 63, along with the Marriage Register of Persons of Color from Book 4.

The Dade County Historical Society wants to thank the Recorder's Office: Robert W. Hughes and Mary E. (Toler) Evans; The Librarians: Blanche (Daughtrey) Allison and Florene (Hodgson) Stapp; and the Ozark Area Community Action Corporation: J. Clyde Crowell, director, and Cathy E. McConnell, student. We appreciate their assistance in making these records available.

This is the second printing by the Dade County Historical Society of these records. They were originally published as two volumes and have been combined for this edition.
