DADE COUNTY MISSOURI MARRIAGE RECORDS: THINGS TO NOTE ABOUT BOOK B

Several marriages of people of "Color" are noted. Other marriages of colored people were not marked as such, but are included with the marriages of the county. We have only included the notation when it was part of the marriage record.

This book is the first to list the residence of those who were being married and the first to list where the marriage took place.

Several couples changed their minds or waited so long the license had to be reissued.

There are some unusual abbreviations for the officiating officer. M.G. for "Minister of the Gospel" and J.P. for "Justice of the Peace" are here. Also you will find M.F.G. which presumably would mean Minister of the Full Gospel, which is still used today. Judges of the County Court and the Probate Court are so identified. V.D.M. stands for "Verbi Die Minister," Latin for Minister of the word of God. Also included are Licensed Ministers of the M.E. Church.

Some people evidently lived near the County line and gave a town in another county as the address--such as Golden City, which is actually in Barton County, or Walnut Grove, which is in Greene County, combined with Dade as the county of residence. Evidently their postoffice was the town, but their residence was actually in Dade County. These can give real clues to locations if they are read correctly. It doesn't mean that Golden City was in Dade County at that time.

A number of addresses are given which do not exist today as postoffices. Some of these are still familiar names in the area: Arcola, Kings Point, Sylvania, Cedarville, Cane Hill, Corry, and Pilgrim. The names have clung to the area even though the postoffice, and in many cases the country store, has closed.

Three names have been changed: Mellville became Dadeville, Watkins became South Greenfield, and Chambersville became Dudenville.

Some of the others are not so easy:

Ernest has vanished. In 1977 Ray Shafer lives where Ernest once was.

Newport was in Barton Co. and served the northwest corner of Cedar Township in Dade County.

Turnback was where Dilday Mill was, but the P.O. was called Turnback.

Davenport was located in a very interesting old sandstone building near the Barton Co. line. It was the site of a stage line change, and also a postoffice. Perhaps they carried a few groceries. The building had an outside staircase for overnight guests.

Rock Prairie was near Everton

Pemberton was known first as Campbell's mill. This washed away, then his son-in-law, H.H. Pemberton, had the mill, which was built on the south side of the river. Before and during the Civil War it was known as Engleman's Mill. More recently it has been known as Hulston Mill. At the time Engleman had the mill, carding mill, etc., Pemberton had a hotel, grocery, etc. As far as we know at this time, Engleman's Mill was the first post-office at the site.

Emmitt was a railroad stop between Everton and South Greenfield.
