ACKNOWLEDGEMENTS

It takes the help of many volunteers to complete the survey of tombstones. The following Platte County Historical Society members spent hours enduring heat, cold, and mosquitoes to transcribe the information from the 1,150 grave markers at the Laurel Hill Cemetery in Weston, MO: Lita Baker, Jo Ann Benne, Virginia Brown, Georgia Hennessey, Kathryn E. Loncar, Velma Loncar, Ann Noland, Martha Noland, and Lilian Wadeworth.

A special mention needs to be made of the PCHS workers who donated their time at the cemetery again and again: Fran Bohachick, Irma I. Miller, Betty Murray, and Betty N. Soper.

Betty Murray, in addition to gathering the raw data, also proofread the printed copy and compared each of the 1,662 entries to the original tombstone text.

INTRODUCTION

The Genealogy Division of the Platte County Historical Society designed a "Cemetery Census Survey Form" on which to transcribe the information on grave markers. (A copy is reproduced at the end of this section.) In some instances there is more information on the worksheet than there was room for in this book. The completed survey forms are on deposit in the PCHS Library (Lower level of the Frederick P. Krause house in Platte City, MO.) Inquiries should be addressed to:

PCHS Librarian
Ben Ferrel Museum

The data found in this book may not match information found in other sources. Our data was read from grave markers whose legibility ranged from excellent to non-existent, by surveyors who may have misread the marker or correctly read incorrect or tradition-based data which had been given to the monument maker who may have made mistakes when carving.

Remember to check alternate spellings in the index as the surnames (as carved) varied. One gentleman (buried at Laurel Hill in Weston) had two markers: a civilian one and a military one. The marble stone listed him as Ashley O'Dowed while the bronze tablet listed him as Ashley O'Dowd.

When a tombstone said "Consort of", "Wife of", or "Husband of", the spouse survived the deceased. When the tombstone said "Relict of" or "Widow of" the spouse predeceased the person listed on the marker. The use of "Consort" became popular after the 1861 death of Albert, the Prince Consort of Queen Victoria of England.

The double-entry markers in use today often show the names of two people but have dates for only one of them. The second deathdate may not be written because the spouse still is alive, may have remarried and is buried with the new spouse, or the spouse is dead but no one contacted the monument company to have the the second deathdate added.

When only a deathdate is written on the grave marker, the age of the deceased is normally included. From this information it is possible to determine the birth date. If a tombstone reads: "Died Dec 15, 1900 aged 80 years 1 month & 16 days" the birthdate is figured thusly:

1900 12 15
- 80 1 16
<hr/> 1820 10 30

The death month is converted to its numerical equivalent (December = 12th month).
The death date is rearranged from the largest to smallest unit of time (Year - Month - Day). Below the deathdate place the age-at-death figure, again using the largest to smallest unit of time arrangement (and convert January to 1st mo).

Now we have a routine math problem--sort of. Begin subtracting from the right side as in regular math. Since 16 can not be subtracted from 15 we need to borrow from the middle column. (This is where this type of problem differs from regular math). When using MONTHS in the middle column we have to borrow 28, 29, 30 or 31 DAYS depending on which month taken. In this instance December is "taken" as it is the most recent month the deceased lived. Since December has 31 days that is what we add to the 15 ($31 + 15 = 46$). Subtract 16 days from 46 days and the answer is 30 days.

The middle column now has 11 months in it as we had to borrow "December" earlier. Subtract 1 month from 11 months and the answer is 10 months. In the year column subtract 80 years from 1,900 years. Convert the answer to common usage and it becomes Oct 30 1820--the birthdate.

Since the Gregorian calendar has been used in the American Colonies since 1753, it is also possible (with a perpetual calendar chart) to calculate the day of the week for any date after December 31, 1752.

If a child lived only a short time, many times the inscription on the marker had only a death date. On some stoneste inscription may simply read "Infant son of C. & M. K. Magers, born and died". (LH 416)

It was common for people who died during Platte County's pioneer period to have their place of prior residency or place of birth on their gravestones. They thought of themselves as living in Platte County but "from somewhere else".

The fraternal insignias and social emblems used on markers in Platte County include: Masons, Woodmen of the World, Shriners, and Order of the Eastern Stars.

By using the Putnam's Contemporary German Dictionary (G. P. Putnam's Sons, New York, 1969) some of the German text was translated as:

Den	= The
Geb	= Born
Geboren	= Date of birth
Geborene	= Nee
Gest	= Died
Gestorben	= Deceased
Hier ruhen unsere eltern	= Here lies our parents
Mutter	= Mother
Vater	= Father

Hier ruht = Here lies (from C. Nutty)

If enough support (interest, volunteers, and contributions) is shown, the Platte County Historical Society might start a conservation project to reset fallen and leaning markers and repair broken stones. Contributors could specify tombstones they wished to sponsor. A general restoration fund for needy stones should also be started. All work would have to be done on a one-cemetery-at-a-time basis.

HOW TO USE THIS BOOK

To find a specific name look it up in the index at the back of this volume. Each name has a two letter code (for the name of the cemetery) and a stone number (which, by its sequentiality, indicates the stone's proximity to other stones in the same cemetery).

The cemeteries are arranged alphabetically in this book however, within each cemetery listing the entries are arranged by the relative position of the stones. Every grave marker which had writing on it was given an identity (a two letter code and a stone number). When more than one person was listed on a single marker, each name received the same stone number but followed by a different letter of the alphabet.

The format used in this book allows each person a one line entry across TWO PAGES. The headings on the left page are: 1) cemetery code, 2) stone number, 3) name of the deceased, 4) relationships, 5) birthdate, and 6) deathdate. The headings on the right page are: 7) repeat of the person's cemetery code and 8) stone number from the left page, 9) age at time of death, 10) miscellaneous information of genealogical interest, 11) the shape of the marker as indicated by a tombstone profile code, 12) the type of material used for the marker and 13) the marker's physical condition.

In some instances women are listed more than once in the "NAME ON MARKER" column. This duplicate entry is for indexing purposes only. When a female of marriagable age was listed with a first, middle and last name AND if the middle name appeared as if it could have been a maiden name, she was listed under both names in the index.

A surname that is enclosed by brackets did not follow the first name on the grave marker, but is ASSUMED to be the surname of the individual. "Charles, son of Wm. S. & Amelia Murphy" on a marker will be listed as "Charles [Murphy]" in this book. The surname of the deceased was not given --only the name of the parents. Charles might NOT have been a son of BOTH Wm. S. and Amelia Murphy.

Any of the following data might be included in the "ADDITIONAL INFORMATION" column: descriptions of the design carved into the marker, transcription of as much of the epitaph as there was room for (epitaphs, in their entirety, were copied onto the Cemetery Census Survey Form), comments about the marker in general, reference to additional people (by their stone number) who share the same stone, or more statistics about the person (as found on the marker). Text in quotations actually appeared on the grave marker. Other information given in this column is personal observations.

Because there was not much space in the "ADDITIONAL INFORMATION" column, a wide variety of abbreviations were used. The identifying numbers of additional persons who were enumerated on the same marker were often prefaced by "s/s" which means "on the same stone as"; "relief" means that the design was raised or bulged out from the marker's surface. Many times the relief design was surrounded by an indented circle or depressed hollow carved into the stone. Many of the modern designs were "incised" or cut into the stone.

The tombstone profiles coded in the "SHAPE" column may be only an approximate of the actual marker. They are the most commonly found shapes in Platte County, Missouri burying grounds. Many of the same styles were also described in "Cemetery Symbolism of Prairie Pioneer: Gravestone Art and Social Change in Story County, Iowa" by Coleen L. Nutty.

In the 1800s there were three general silhouettes of tombstones. Up to the 1860's almost all markers were 2 inch thick slabs of rectangle stone. Around 1860 the obelisk (square shaft) and Column (cylinder) styles gained in popularity. By the 1890s large rectangular blocks, usually mounted on one or more bases, were the rage. In the twentieth century markers became smaller and lower to the ground.

At all times, but especially during the High Victorian Era markers were erected which did not fit easily into any of the three general silhouettes. Unique was added to cover these. Each general type (Tablet, Column, Block, and Unique), was arbitrarily further divided into its more common varieties and assigned a number i.e. T-01 or B-02. Even so, there were always some which were not common. When the marker was of unusual design, the marker was placed into the appropriate general silhouette category then followed by "un" which means "Unusual".

If the marker appears to have been provided by a funeral service, "Temp" is used in the "SHAPE" column to identify it as a temporary marker. Sometimes only the grave marker base remains. Since there is no way to know the exact shape of the missing marker "unkn" (for unknown) was placed in the "SHAPE" column. The tombstone silhouette codes are reproduced at the end of this section.

In the "MATERIAL" column the more frequently mentioned materials are soft marble and polished granite. Soft marble started being used in the 1800s and continued up to the 1900s. The white soft marble was almost exclusively the material used on the standing tablet markers. This stone was also adaptable to the obelisk and column designs. By the 1880s veined and gray marbles were being used for shafts also.

Gray dull granites were in use by the 1880s and polished granites by the 1890s. These harder materials were made into obelisks too but more frequently were made up as large block monuments. After the turn of the century at the same time that the markers were becoming smaller and lower to the ground, red and black polished granites started to be used in addition to the familiar gray ones.

After the marbles and the granites the most common material used in Platte County, Missouri cemeteries were the metals. "White Bronze" markers, which actually were made of formed zinc, were at the height of their popularity during the 1880s. The United States Government began issuing bronze horizontal tablets through the Veterans Administration by the 1960s. The flat bronze markers became widely used by the civilian sector a few years later.

Many of the earliest dated markers which still are legible were made of locally quarried stone and field stone. Concrete, wood, and iron, are some of the more unique materials used for grave markers in Platte County, Missouri.

The condition of the markers as listed in the "COND" column were pure judgement calls. The "condition" was based more on how easy the text could be read than on the condition of the artifact as a whole. If the lettering on the stone was legible and the marker had no obvious cracks or missing parts, it was judged "Good". If the text was hard to make out and the stone showed definite wear, it was judged "Fair". If the text almost was illegible or if the stone was in obvious bad repair, the marker was judge "Poor".

END NOTES

...the earliest dated markers which still are legible were made of locally quarried sand and field stone.
Concrete was used for the markers in Vicksburg County, Missouri.
The United States Government began issuing the first series of markers in 1880. The first series were made of sandstone and the granite the next year.

After the markers and the granite the next material used in Vicksburg County, Missouri, was made of "White Granite" markers, which were made of limestone. The United States Government began issuing the first series of markers in 1880.

The condition of the markers as listed in the column were given in brackets. The "condition" was more or less good, the rest could be read from the condition of the surface as a whole. If the lettering of the stone was illegible and the marker had no obvious or missing parts it was judged "Good". If the marker was in good condition and the lettering was judged "Fair". If the lettering was illegible or if the marker was in poor condition it was judged "Poor".

...the condition of the markers as listed in the column were given in brackets. The "condition" was more or less good, the rest could be read from the condition of the surface as a whole.

The 1947 Laurel Hill Survey Observations

The Platte County Historical Society did a survey of the Laurel Hill Cemetery around 1947. The results of that work appear in Cemetery Records of Platte County, Volume one. A partial survey taken by Mrs. E. G. Aker is on pages 67 and 68 under Weston Cemetery. The survey by Mrs. J. W. Devina of Weston Cemetery is on pages 70 through 91. At the end of her entry is the following statement:

March 4, 1947

To Whom It May Concern:

The data contained in the foregoing pages is the complete census of all remaining gravestones standing to this date in LAUREL HILL CEMETERY, with the exception of several stones dated prior to 1902 and after 1850. This exception was made because the existing Sexton's records kept of all burials in Laurel Hill between those dates. The Sexton's record is now the property of the LAUREL HILL CEMETERY ASSOCIATION, WESTON, MISSOURI.

Signed, Mrs. J. W. Devina
Director of Research, P.C.H.S.

With Mrs. Aker's and Mrs. Devina's entries combined they list 706 names of people buried at the Laurel Hill Cemetery. The new 1986 Laurel Hill survey has 1,662 entries. The large difference between the two totals may be partially explained. Obviously there has been many burials at Laurel Hill between 1947 and 1986 and it was noted on the 1947 survey that "...several stones dated prior to 1902 and after 1850" were omitted deliberately from the survey.

There were many instances when the information gathered most recently did not agree with what was in the Cemetery Records of Platte County Volume One. In each case when there was a discrepancy the tombstone was checked again. The natural weathering of the soft marble stones and the deliberate defacing and vandalizing of additional markers affected the ability to read each and every carving. Of the 706 names in the 1947 survey, 35 were unable to be found/read today. The following list is of names found on the printed 1947 survey but not found on the 1986 survey.

The grounds of the Laurel Hill Cemetery was divided arbitrarily into 11 sections to make the surveying task manageable and to make each marker easier found. Two of the section lines, Cypress Avenue and Rosedale Avenue, are grave walkways which were marked already on a plot map of the cemetery. The arbitrary stone numbers assigned within each section are as follows:

Section A = markers LH 1 to LH 47
Section B = markers LH 48 to LH 183
Section C = markers LH 184 to LH 385
Section D = markers LH 386 to LH 573
Section E = markers LH 573 to LH 706
Section F = markers LH 707 to LH 737
Section G = markers LH 738 to LH 837
Section H = markers LH 838 to LH 929
Section I = markers LH 930 to LH 997
Section J = markers LH 998 to LH 1114
Section K = markers LH 1115 to LH 1150

The earliest recorded marker within an existing grave marked in Laurel Hill was for Jane Woods (LH 417) who died 2 Jul 1867.

LAUREL HILL CEMETERY, MOUND CITY, PASTOR COUNTY, MO

LAUREL HILL CEMETERY NOTES

The Laurel Hill Cemetery Association commissioned the Platte County Historical Society to do a new survey of the Laurel Hill Cemetery on Welt Street in Weston, Missouri. The markers were transcribed between May 1985 and October 1986.

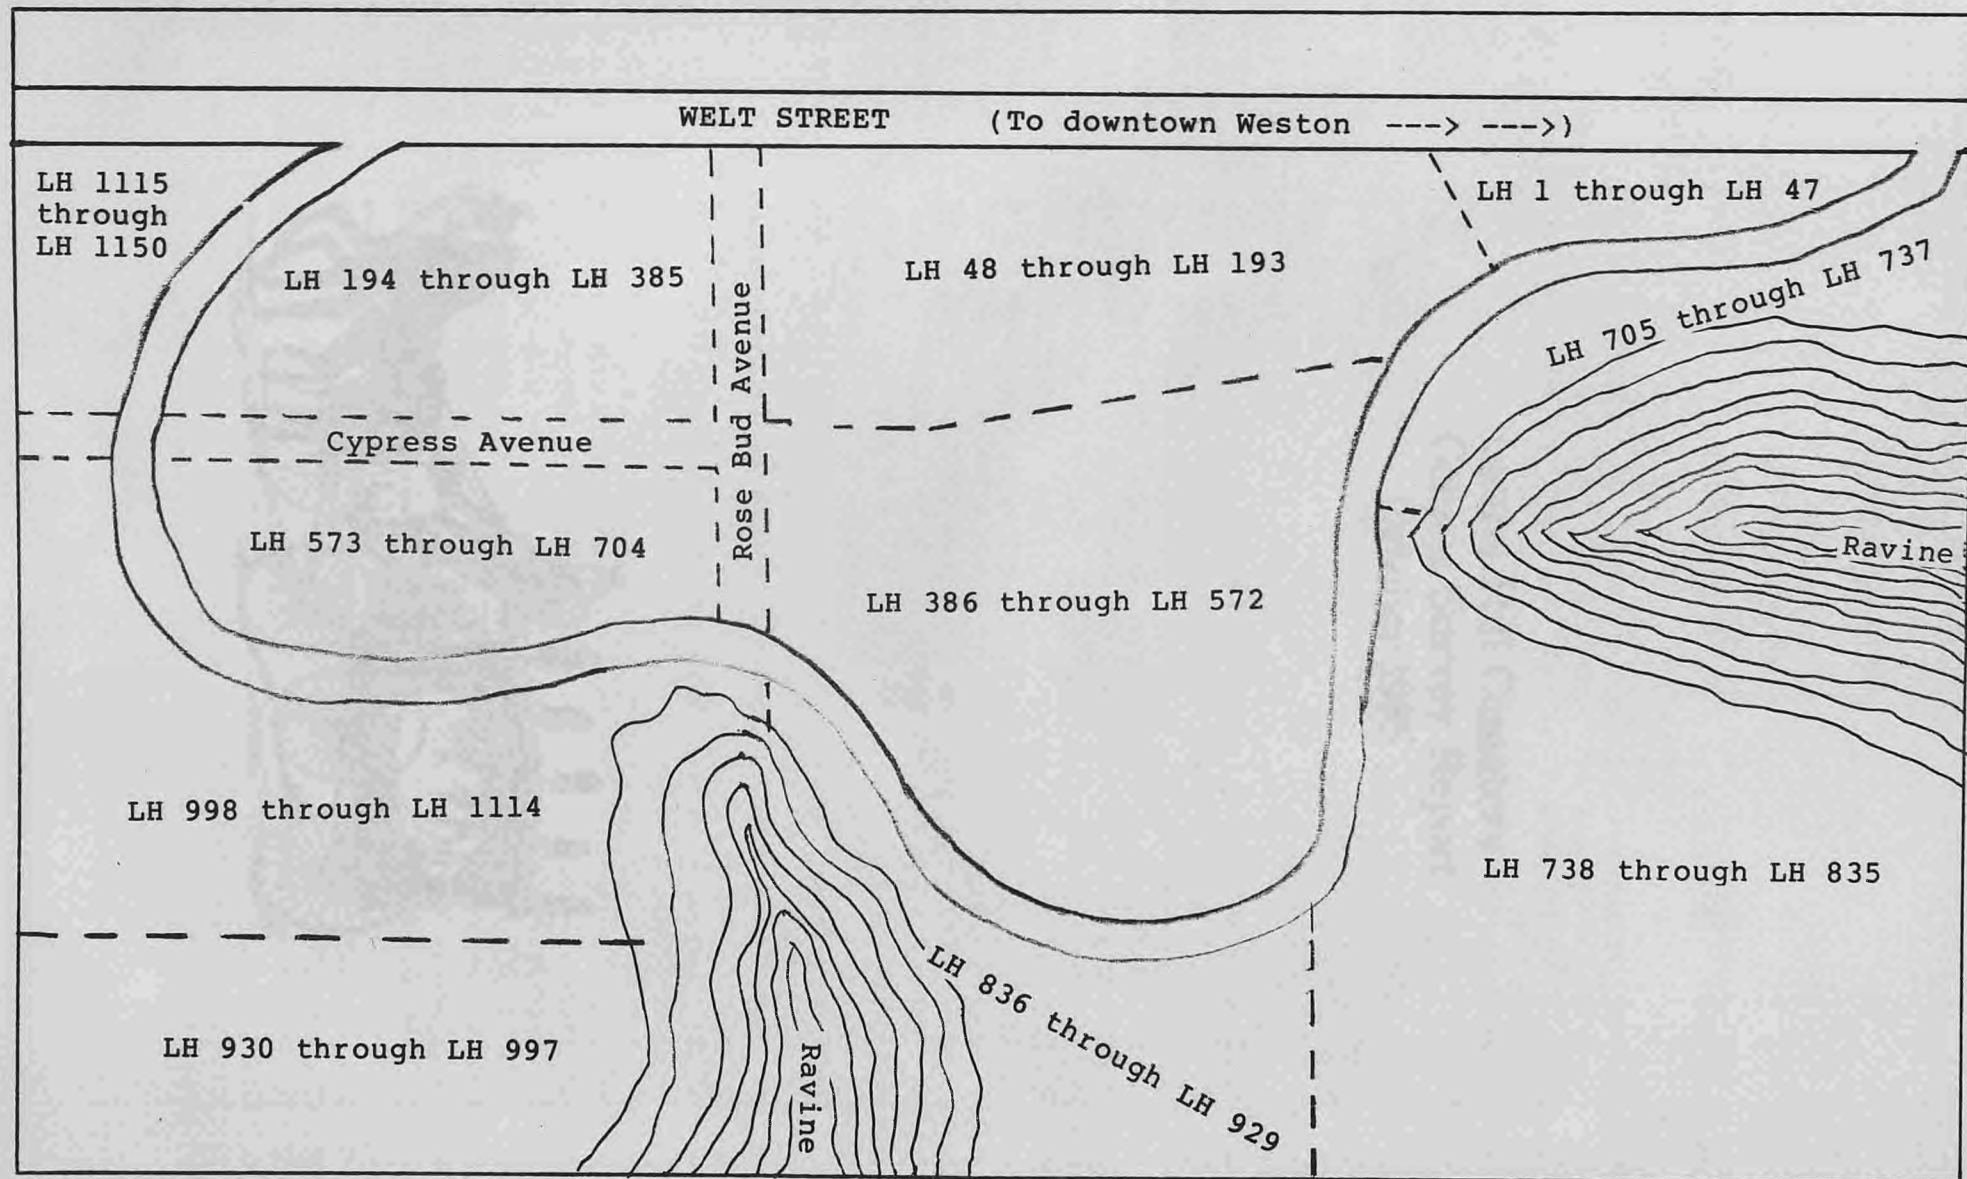

The Laurel Hill Cemetery is bound on the south side by Welt Street. The one-way gravel drive begins at the southwest corner of the cemetery. The hillside site covers several acres and has small groves of cedars, pines, and broadleaf trees.

The grounds of the Laurel Hill Cemetery was divided arbitrarily into 11 sections to make the surveying task managable and to make each marker easier found. Two of the section lines, Cypress Avenue and Rosebud Avenue, are grass walkways which were marked already on a plot map of the cemetery. The arbitrary stone numbers assigned within each section are as follows:

Section A	=	markers	LH	1	to	LH	47
Section B	=	markers	LH	48	to	LH	193
Section C	=	markers	LH	194	to	LH	385
Section D	=	markers	LH	386	to	LH	572
Section E	=	markers	LH	573	to	LH	706
Section F	=	markers	LH	707	to	LH	737
Section G	=	markers	LH	738	to	LH	835
Section H	=	markers	LH	836	to	LH	929
Section I	=	markers	LH	930	to	LH	997
Section J	=	markers	LH	998	to	LH	1114
Section K	=	markers	LH	1115	to	LH	1150

The earliest deathdate written on an existing grave marker in Laurel Hill was for Jane Woods (LH 477) who died 5 Jul 1841.
