HUNTSVILLE

Huntsville is beautifully located upon an elevated and healthful plateau, on the north side of the Wabash, St. Louis and Pacific Railroad.

On the 5th of January, 1831, the first steps were taken towards locating the county seat at Huntsville, by the appointment of Robert Wilson as commissioner. The tract or tracts which comprised the original town were donated to the county by William Goggin, Gideon Wright, Daniel Hunt and Henry Winburn, and the county surveyor was immediately ordered to lay off the land and make a plat thereof. Each of these donations consisted of $12\frac{1}{2}$ acres, which formed an exact square, the dome of the new court-house being the centre. The town site now covers between seven and eight hundred acres.

Daniel Hunt, one of the donors above named, was the first settler, locating, however, but a little while in advance of the other three. These men were from Kentucky. The town was called Huntsville, in honor of Daniel Hunt, the first settler.

The first sale of lots took place in the following April, and included all of them with the exception of those from number 94 to 99 inclusive, reserved for court-house, lot 155 for jail lot, and also number 32, which it was then thought necessary to hold back for a market-house. This market-house lot was subsequently sold, and is the one on which stands the present residence of James B. Thompson. The highest price then paid for lots were $115, which was paid for the lot on which stands the brick store now occupied by M. Heymann, and the post-office stand, and also for the lot which is the present site of the Austin House. Some of the lots sold as low as $3.25, which are very valuable property now.

The original town site of Huntsville was doubtless covered with timber, judging from the following order which was made by the county court when the town was located:

ORDERED: That all persons cutting timber in the streets of Huntsville are required to leave the stumps not more than one foot in height, and to clear all timber so cut, together with the brush.

PIONEER BUSINESS MEN

The pioneer business men of the town were Davis and Currin, to whom were issued the first tavern license, granted by the county court in 1829. Their place of business was at the house of William Goggin (Daniel G. Davis and Waddy T. Currin). The next merchants were Garth and Giddings (Dabney C. Garth and Brack Giddings). These gentlemen were from Virginia. Garth represented the county in the Legislature.

Then came Fielding, Clinton and Grundy Cockerill, who did a general merchandise business under the firm name of Cockerill & Co. Joseph C. Dameron commenced the mercantile business in the spring of 1835, and in 1842 he brought the first piano to the county, its strange and inspiring notes being the first ever heard among the classic hills of Huntsville.

Conway and Lamb were among the earliest merchants. John F. Riley was the first gunsmith; O. D. Carlisle was the first saddler; John Gray taught the first school, in a log house located on the public square; James C. Ferguson was the first shoemaker; Dr. Waller Head was the first physician to locate in the town. He was a native of Orange county, Virginia, and located in Huntsville, in October, 1831, where he continued to reside until his death, which occurred in August, 1845. Dr. Joseph Eutherford came soon after Head, and formed a partnership in the practice of medicine with the latter.

Ned. Goggin (colored) opened the first bakery, and after accumulating quite a fortune, he moved to Putnam county, Missouri, where he now resides. Joseph Viley erected the first carding machine and cotton gin in 1834. Joseph C. Dameron opened the first tobacco factory. Dr. J. J. Watts kept the first drug store; William Smith the first livery stable.

Gen. Robert Wilson was the first lawyer in the town. He was also the first county and circuit court clerk, and afterwards became a United States Senator from Missouri. Clair Oxley, from Kentucky, was the second lawyer; he afterwards died in Santa Fe, New Mexico. William Goggin erected the first mill in the town at a very early day. It was a horse mill, and operated for nearly 35 years.

On the 11th of October, 1876, he was married to Miss Sarah Sutliff, a daughter of John Sutliff, of the county. She was born February 26, 1859. They have one child, William Oscar, born May 14, 1877. Mr. and Mrs. Baker are members of the M. E. Church, South.

Capt. Balthis, a newspaper man of long experience, and a gentleman who is esteemed wherever known for his high character as a man and his worth as a citizen, has been identified with the Herald at Huntsville for nearly five years, and during that time the paper has made steady and substantial progress, not only in value as a business investment, but in influence and reputation as a journal. Capt. Balthis is a native of the Old Dominion, and by his services as a soldier has proved himself to be a worthy son of the old Commonwealth that gave him birth. He was born in Front Royal, May 24, 1843, and was son of William and Margaret A. Balthis, one of the respected families of that place. Capt. Balthis' early education was rather limited, he having quit the local academy of his town, whilst still in boyhood, of his own accord and in order to learn the printing business. He served an apprenticeship of three years at the case in the office of the Virginia Valley Gazette, a paper published at Front Royal. Subsequently he worked a short time in the same office as a journey-man. Later along he quit the printing business to accept a situation in a tin and stove establishment of that place, in which he continued until the outbreak of the war. On the first call of the Governor of Virginia to defend the State against invasion, young Balthis promptly offered himself as a volunteer and was accepted, entering the service as a drummer boy. This was on the 18th of April, 1861, and for four years and eight days following he followed the three-barred banner of the South with unfaltering devotion and bravery, and until it went down in defeat to rise no more perhaps for generations. By his merits as a soldier and his gallantry, he rose from grade to grade until he became the captain of one of the most dashing and intrepid cavalry companies in the army of Northern Virginia. He commanded Co. A, of the Twenty-first Virginia cavalry for over two years; and until after Lee's surrender. His company was noted in the army for its superior drill and bravery. Capt. Balthis commanded the last skirmish line in front of his brigade at Appomattox, but withdrew with his division before the articles of surrender were signed by Gen. Lee. Afterwards he reported at Gen. Hancock's headquarters at Winchester and was paroled April 26, 1865. After the surrender Capt. Balthis returned to Front Royal and engaged in the tin and stove Business. However, he soon determined to come to Missouri, and accordingly, in March, 1866, sold out in Virginia and moved to this State, locating at Brunswick, where he obtained a situation in the office of the Brunswicker. In the fall of the following year he purchased Judge Winslow's interest in the Brunswicker, and became an equal partner with

BALTHIS (Continued)

J. B. Naylor in the ownership and publication of that paper. Capt. Balthis continued identified with the Brunswicker for some eight years, but in 1875 sold his interest to his partner and engaged in the grocery store business at Brunswick. The year following, however, he retired from the grocery business and went to Joplin, where he was speculating in mines for a short time. It was in February, 1878-that he came to Huntsville, and here, in partnership with Mr. H. O. Collins, he established the Randolph Vindicator, becoming also associate editor of that paper. They conducted the Vindicator for about a year, at the expiration of which time they suspended its publication, and soon afterwards Capt. Balthis purchased a half interest in the Herald from Mr. T. M. Elmore, and became associate editor of the paper with Dr. John T. Fort, who previously had editorial charge of it. The September following Dr. Fort retired from the paper and Capt. Balthis became sole editor. Since then he and Mr. Elmore have conducted the paper together, the former having charge of the editorial and mechanical departments, and the latter the business management. The Herald, as every one knows, is one of the leading papers of Randolph county, and, indeed, one of the prominent and influential cosmopolitan journals of this section of the State. It has a large circulation, and as an advertising medium has few equals among the country papers of North-east Missouri. Capt. Balthis is an excellent writer and a man of independence of mind and expressions, and though an earnest Democrat, he never permits party interests to come between him and his care for the best interests of Randolph county and the people at large. On the 8th of June, 1869, Capt. Balthis was married to Miss Laura T. Spencer, eldest daughter of Thomas H. Spencer, a well-to-do and respected farmer residing near Brunswick. This union has been blessed with five children, three of whom are living, a son and two daughters.

Dr. Blair, who has been engaged in the practice of his profession for nearly half a century, and has been located at Huntsville for the past 25 years, is a native of Pennsylvania and of Scotch-Irish ancestry, being a representative of the same family from which Gen. Frank P. Blair, of this State, descended. Prior to the Revolution, five of the Blair brothers came to America from the North of Ireland, and from these, most, if not all of the Blairs of the United States sprang, including Gen. Frank P. Blair, who was a second cousin to the subject of this sketch, their ancestor of the fourth generation being the same. The brothers who came over were: James, Archibald, John, Brice and Thomas. Brice Blair was the grandfather of Dr. William Blair. John Blair, a son of Brice Blair, married Miss Mary Purdeau, a daughter of William Purdeau, who came over from France and settled in Pennsylvania. John Blair had a family of 11 children, and Dr. Blair was the second of these. James and Mary are in Iowa, Charity lives at Bedford, Pa., and John S. is at Frankfort, Va. All the rest are deceased. The parents both died in Pennsylvania--the father in 1853 and the mother in 1878, in the eighty-fifth year of her age. Dr. Blair was born at Flint Stone creek, in Bedford county, Pa., May 20, 1811, and was reared on his father's farm, in his native county, until he was 18 years of age, when, having been of studious habits and having a quick, active mind, he had acquired a good English education, and he began school-teaching. He became quite successful and popular as a school-teacher; and continued it for four years. In the meantime, he had decided to devote himself to the medical profession, and having saved up some means with which to prosecute his studies, he began the study of medicine under Dr. Scott, of Bedford county, applying himself with unflagging diligence and energy for about two years. He was now qualified to engage in the practice, and he began practice in his native county and continued it with success until 1853, when he took a course of lectures in medicine and surgery in the medical department of the University of Pennsylvania. He resumed practice and has continued it from that time to this without interruption, except while attending medical college a second term, at the conclusion of which he was duly graduated. Dr. Blair came to Missouri in 1859 and located at Huntsville, where he has since resided. His house, when in the outskirts of town, was in the woods; and the county was but little more than a wilderness. In 1861, Dr. Blair, like nearly all of his name in this country; took sides unequivocally for the Union, and didn't go behind the bush to express his convictions or act upon them. He identified himself promptly and actively with the Union element in the

BLAIR (Continued)

State, and, the value of his services as a physician and surgeon being appreciated, he was made post surgeon of the Third Iowa; two companies stationed at Huntsville in February and March, 1862, and two companies of Merrill's Horse. In March, 1863, Gen. Gamble commissioned him surgeon of the Fiftieth regiment, and he was also detailed surgeon of the First Provincial regiment, E. M. M., with headquarters at Mexico. Later along he was made regimental surgeon of the Forty-sixth E. M. M., and was commissioned under Col. A. F. Denny, Col. J. D. Douglass being colonel of the First Provisional regiment, where he was retained as examining physician for seven months, when he resigned. He was then commissioned surgeon, by Gov. Willard P. Hall, of the Forty-sixth E. M. M., and was stationed at Huntsville until the close of the war. In November, 1863, Dr. Blair was appointed one of the examining physicians for the pension office (serving under Baker and Van Arnum, commissioners of pensions), and he has held that position ever since. Dr. Blair was quite active and useful in organizing the militia of Randolph county during the war for the Union service, and continued in the service until 1866. In the general practice of his profession he has been quite successful, and has long been recognized as one of the leading physicians of the county. Personally, he is a man of high character and is of a kind, generous disposition, and much esteemed by the people wherever he is known. He is a man of strong character, great mental vigor, and as determined and resolute, almost, as the laws of nature; for whatever he conceives to be right and proper to do, he will do it, or make the attempt, though the heavens fall. This is a characteristic of the Blair family; and it is this unconquerable resolution that makes them men of consequence and influence wherever their fortunes are cast. On the 19th of March, 1833, Dr. Blair was married to Miss Rachel Hendrickson; of Alleghany county, Maryland. She lived to brighten his home for nearly half a century, but at last went the way of all flesh, and her spirit passed through glory's morning gate on the 17th of August, 1881. They had a family of ten children: Jonathan, the eldest, died in infancy; Martha died while the wife of J. T. Devore; Sarah is the widow of Rev. William Hanley, formerly a Methodist minister of Breckinridge; Eliza died in infancy, as did also John; Norval W. is at home; Albert died in the Union army at the age of 17; Lydia J. P., the wife of W. G. True, of Moberly; Clara, the wife of Thomas A. Craig, of Macon; and Arabella is the wife of Charles C. Ford, of Ottumwa, Iowa. Dr. Blair is a member of the Methodist Church; as was his wife for many years prior to her death.

JUDGE GEORGE H. BURCKHARTT

For nearly a quarter of a century Judge Burckhartt has occupied with honor and ability the bench of the judicial circuit of North-east Missouri, which includes the county of his residence--Randolph. During this long service his life has of course become intimately interwoven with the judicial history of the State. For years he has been regarded as one of the ablest judges and most upright men on the circuit bench, and his opinions command the highest consideration and respect, both from the profession and the public at large.

Judge Burckhartt descends from one of the pioneer families of Missouri. His grandfather, Christopher F. Burckhartt, was a native of Maryland, and a gallant soldier under Washington during the War of the Revolution. He immigrated to this State with his family in 1811 and settled first in St. Louis county, where he lived until his death, one of the worthy and respected old pioneers of that county. He was well advanced in years when he came to Missouri, and most of his family of children had grown up and become themselves the heads of families. Among these was George Burckhartt, who became the father of Judge George H., the subject of the present sketch.

George Burckhartt, pere, was reared in Frederick county, Maryland, and was married in Jefferson county, Kentucky, to Miss Ruth Dorsey, a representative of another old and respected

Maryland family. George Burckhartt and family came to Missouri five years after his father, and also settled in Howard county. But in 1820 he removed over into Randolph county, where he resided for many years. He died in Howard county, to which he had returned 10 years previously, in 1864, when 83 years of age. He was a man of fine intelligence and high character, and was one of the prominent citizens of Randolph county. Before coming to Missouri he had served under Harrison in the War of 1812, and it was on account of his absence in the army that he did not follow his father sooner, as he had intended to do, to this State. In Randolph county he served for a number of years on the county court bench, and held other positions of local importance. He was member of the first Legislature of Missouri from Howard county, and was a member from Randolph after it was organized. He was a farmer by occupation, as was also his father, and, considering the times in which he lived and his opportunities, he was quite successful. In politics he was a life-long Whig, and was one of the staunchest supporters of that party in Randolph county.

Judge George H. Burckhartt, the ninth and youngest in his father's family of children, was born in Randolph county on his father's homestead, six miles south-east of Huntsville, September 11, 1823. He was brought up to agricultural pursuits and, of course, in this section of the country at that early day, had only limited school advantages. From an early age, however, he showed a marked taste for study, and besides the instruction he received in the occasional common schools kept in the neighborhood, he improved his leisure to good advantage by study at home. John Stuart Mill says that the distinctions between men arise not so much from the superior natural ability of one over another, as from the inspiration of ambition which stimulates the one to higher exertions than the other. This ambition to rise to prominence and usefulness in life young Burckhartt had, and it is perhaps due quite as much to this as to his sterling natural ability, which all recognize, that he rose to the enviable position he has so long occupied and adorned. Pursuing his studies with unabated zeal and assiduity when young, he soon became qualified to teach school, and capable school-teachers were in much request in this section of the country at that time. In September, 1839, he began teaching in Monroe county, and he continued to teach for two years.

In the meantime he had determined to devote himself to the legal profession, and during his leisure, while teaching, he pursued a regular course of study preparatory to his admission to the bar. In 1843 he was duly admitted to practice law by Judge P. McBride, of Monroe, sitting at Paris, Monroe county, Mo., and he immediately afterwards entered upon the practice of his profession at Huntsville, Mo. His sound, sober, good sense and his close attention to business, united with his high character and habits of study, and his close investigation of the law and facts of every case entrusted to him, soon made a favorable impression on the community as to his ability and worth as a lawyer, and he was not long in securing an excellent and lucrative practice. His rise in his profession as a practitioner was steady and substantial, and he had not been at the bar many years before he became recognized as one of the soundest lawyers and most successful practitioners in the Huntsville circuit. He was always a man of steady, even habits, and went about performing the duties of his practice in a methodical, clear-headed, business-like way; and the opening of court rarely, if ever, found him unprepared to take the proper steps in his cases, when they were called.

Judge Burckhartt is possessed of a mind broad and logical in its operations, considerably of the philosophic cast, and he views questions which come up for consideration not only as to their immediate causes and effects, but as to the general principles which they involve and their relations with other questions of a kindred nature, and the influence, directly and ultimately, a given decision would have. Thus in the practice whilst he was an untiring student of his cases, consulting all the law and precedents bearing upon them and, at the same time, more than ordinarily careful and exact in preparing his pleadings, and arranging and presenting his testimony, he depended more for success in the trial of causes upon some one or more principles of law involved, upon which he asked a favorable decision, than upon anything else--either technical advantages, influence as a speaker, or otherwise. He was therefore, principally, what is termed a court lawyer, as contradistinguished from a jury lawyer. Before the court his career was one of distinguished success for, being a fine lawyer himself, he was seldom found presenting a case for consideration in which there was not solid merit on his side, and never one in which he did not believe that he was in the right. Being thus an able and honorable practitioner, he was almost invariably successful with his cases before the court. And when he went to the jury he was usually so well prepared with instructions that it was not a difficult task for him to make their way clear to a verdict for his client.

While Judge Burckhartt never claimed to be a great orator, he was always a clear, forcible and convincing speaker, and generally carried the convictions of his hearers with him in his train of argument. Often, indeed, when fully imbued with the justice and gravity of a cause, he rose to a high point of eloquence in his addresses before judge and jury, and whenever he essayed to touch the cords of sentiment, he never failed to carry the hearts of those who heard him with their convictions, which he had already secured. Long before he went on the bench, he was regarded on all hands as one of the leading lawyers of North-east Missouri, and he commanded a large practice, both in the circuit courts and in the State Supreme Court.

Recognizing his eminent fitness and qualifications for the position, in 1862 he was elected circuit judge of the Second Judicial Circuit, and in 1864 he was re-elected. Subsequently he was appointed judge of that circuit by Gov. Fletcher, when the convention of 1865 ousted all the judges in the State, and was again re-elected in 1868. Since then he has been consecutively re-elected and has held that office continuously up to the present time. As a judge, he has more than fulfilled the high expectations of those who honored him with their confidence and esteem in placing him in that grave and responsible office. A man of sound judgment and wide and thorough legal learning, clear-headed and penetrating in investigating the merits of a cause, and anxious to do justice for the love of justice and that the dignity and majesty of the law may be upheld, his administration of his office has been such as to reflect lasting honor upon a position, which of itself would be an honor to any man to hold.

Such are the weight and influence of his opinions on the bench, that fewer cases are appealed to the Supreme Court from his circuit, considering the number and importance of cases tried, than from any other circuit in the State, as the writer is informed by a prominent practitioner in the Supreme Court who has had every opportunity to know. An able lawyer and a learned judge, his ability and learning are only equaled by his high character and incorruptibility.

"With an equal scale
He weighs the offenses betwixt man and man;
He is not so soothed with adulation,
Nor moved with tears to wrest the course of justice
Into an unjust current, to oppress the innocent;
Nor does he make the laws
Punish the man, but in the man the cause."

Though taking only the interest of a public-spirited citizen in politics, since the demise of the Whig party Judge Burckhartt has voted the Democratic ticket, or rather he cast his first Democratic vote for George B. McClellan, having voted for Bell and Everett in 1860. During the war he was a steadfast Union man, but as bitterly deprecated the excesses committed in the name of the Union as he denounced the outrages perpetrated on the other side. As a patriotic citizen he was for the Union above and beyond everything else, and he felt that after that was restored other things would soon right themselves. In this, time has already vindicated the wisdom and correctness of his position.

On the 16th of October, 1849, Judge Burckhartt was married to Miss Amanda McCampbell, a daughter of Wallace McCampbell, an extensive farmer and respected citizen of Randolph county, who settled in that county from Jessamine county, Ky., in an early day. This union has proved a long and happy one, and was blessed with seven children: John, who died at the age of 24; George Dorsey, who resides in this county some 10 miles south-west of Huntsville; Maria, who is now the wife of J. A. Heether; a sketch of whom appears in this volume; Wallace and Odon and Guitar, the last two of whom are at home, Miss Ella being in school at Stephens' College, at Columbia. The Judge has been a prominent member of the Masonic order for 30 years.

"Throughout his entire career," says a biographer of his life, "Judge Burckhartt has been characterized by prompt and energetic action and careful attention to business. Independent in thought, social and genial in manner, and inflexible in integrity, he has attained to that success and lives in the enjoyment of that reward which are the natural outgrowth of a true life."

Mr. Holman's father, John Holman (who was a brave soldier in the Black Hawk War), was one of the early settlers of Randolph county and gave the name to Silver creek which it still bears. He was married here to Miss Eliza Murphy, a daughter of Neal Murphy, another pioneer settler of the county. Both the father and maternal grandfather were originally from Kentucky. Neal Holman was the fourth in the family of his parent's children and was born on Silver creek, October 7, 1841, and reared on his father's farm. In 1861 he enlisted in the State Guard and followed the flag of the South for 12 months, during which he participated in the battles of Boonville, Lexington, Pea Ridge, and numerous other engagements of less importance. He then became separated from the army and being unable to rejoin it, on account of intervening federal forces, crossed over into Illinois, and remained there as a refugee until the close of the war. While in Illinois he took up the carpenter's trade and learned it and continued to work at it until eight or nine years ago. In 1872 he went to California and was absent on the Pacific coast a year. Except during that time he has been in this county ever since the war. During most of the time he has been engaged in farming in connection with carpentering. In January, 1882, he became a partner with Mr. F. T. Payne in the hardware business, and they have since conducted the business together. They have one of the best hardware stores at Huntsville, having an unusually well selected stock in their line and they are doing a large and steadily increasing business. They are both men of character and deal fairly with their customers, having uniform prices, and they sell at figures as low as the state of the market will allow, and hence while it has become known that they keep the best class of goods, it is equally well known that their prices are reasonable and fair. On the 24th of December, 1868, Mr. Holman was married to Miss Augusta Belsher, a daughter of Milton Belsher of this county. They have five children: Ada M., Willie, Russell, Jackson and Ethel. Mr. Holman is a stockholder in the Rake and Stacker Company. He also has a good farm of about a quarter section of land a couple of miles from town. He and wife are members of the Christian Church.

CLIFTON T. KERBY

Mr. Kerby has one of the handsomest farms in Salt Spring township. His place contains over 300 acres and is a plat of land of more than ordinary natural beauty. It is gently undulating, sufficiently rolling for good natural drainage, but not broken enough to cause washes by cultivation and heavy rains. His improvements are of a character to correspond with the natural beauty of his land. His fences are substantial and in excellent repair and his buildings are neat and comfortable, and constructed with an eye to appearance only less than utility and durability. Mr. Kerby, as his place shows, is a progressive, enterprising and successful farmer. He is a native of Kentucky, born in Madison county, August 10, 1849. His parents were E. P. and Elizabeth E. (Baker) Kerby. When Clifton T. was a lad 10 years of age, they came to Missouri and settled in Howard county, where they lived for 14 years, and then came to Randolph, locating a mile and a half from Huntsville. The father always followed farming and stock-raising, and Clifton T. followed his example. He remained with his father until his marriage, which was the 22nd of February, 1872. Miss Cassie Rutherford then became his wife. She was a daughter of Jesse and Sallie (Adams) Rutherford, and was born in Randolph county, May 26, 1851. Both her parents are deceased. When she was only five years of age her mother died, and she was reared by her grandmother in

Howard county. Her father died in 1865. Mr. Kerby settled on a farm, where he now resides, in 1872. Mr. and Mrs. Kerby have five children: Joseph, William, George, James, and a girl, Lucy. Both parents are members of the Christian Church.

Mr. Malone has had charge of the county farm for nearly six years, and in that time, by his industry, intelligence and good management, has made it one of the handsomest and best conducted places of its kind, and, withal, one of the least expensive, the number of inmates considered, in the State. It is not a common thing that a man of his character and ability, capable of succeeding anywhere, is found in charge of an eleemosynary establishment of this kind; not that they are not worthy of the attention of the best of men, for the duties attaching to them should command the best qualities of head and heart, but that men of enterprise and capacity generally direct their energies in other lines, and in business and industries partaking more directly of individual interest. When, therefore, one can be found to take charge of a place of this kind and manage it as Mr. Malone has managed this place, he is entitled only to the more credit for his services, and this has not been refused him by those who know him and are familiar with his manner of carrying on the county farm. He stands high in public esteem, as does also his excellent wife and family. Mr. Malone is a native Randolphian, born on Sweet Spring creek, March 27, 1831. His parents, Thomas and Elizabeth (Dameron) Malone, came to Randolph county from North Carolina in 1829. The father died here in 1843, and the mother four years afterwards. They had a family of 11 children, most of whom are living, and are themselves the heads of families, but Basley W. is a resident of Randolph, as is all of the family, except one, who lives in Sacramento City, Cal. He was reared to habits of industry, and on the 29th of June, 1854, was married to Miss Susan F. Collins, a daughter of Lemuel and Courtney (Robertson) Collins. Her father died and her mother afterwards married Thomas Jackson, who is also now deceased, but the mother is still living at the advanced age of 70. Mr. Malone lived from the age of 14 with his uncle, George A. Mathis, and was engaged in putting up tobacco until his marriage. He then engaged in coopering at Mt. Airy, and also ran a blacksmith shop for about nine years. In 1864 he enlisted in Capt. Matlock's company of the Southern service, but was soon afterwards captured in October, and kept in prison at St. Louis and Alton until February, 1865. Returning to Randolph county, he engaged in farming near Clifton, where he continued for eight years. Coming to Huntsville in 1873, he was engaged in putting up tobacco and the butcher business here until he took charge of the county farm. Mr. and Mrs. Malone have one daughter, Katie M., now a young lady. Mr. Malone has been an elder in the Cumberland Presbyterian Church for 20 years, and has been a member since he was 15 years of age. He is also a member of the I. O. O. F. and is treasurer of the lodge at Huntsville. For one term he was deputy sheriff of the county under Capt. W. F. Elliott.

Mr. Miller, a self-made man, and one of the popular citizens of Randolph county, is a native of the Blue Grass state, born in Nicholasville, Ky., April 16, 1832. His parents were Thomas and Nellie (Branham) Miller, both of old and respected Kentucky families. The father died, however, when James Horace was but two years of age, and after becoming old enough to be of any service he was given a position in a store, and he continued identified with merchandising in the capacity of a clerk until he was 20 years of age. His education was acquired mainly by self-culture or study during leisure hours without an instructor. The nature of his duties as a clerk were such that to be efficient and capable he needed a good practical education, and this he had the industry and force of character to acquire. He became a very successful and popular clerk, and his services were in request wherever he was known. In 1852, however, he decided to cast his fortune with the future of Missouri, and he accordingly came out to this State and selected Macon county as the place of his residence. There he engaged in clerking and afterwards obtained a situation in the county clerk's office. When the war broke out he promptly enlisted in the State Guard under Gov. Jackson's call, and for three years afterwards he followed the Southern banner and participated in many of the hardest fought battles of the war. He was honorably discharged at the expiration of his service, but while on his return to Missouri he was made a prisoner by the Vermont troops and confined at Camp Morton, in Indiana, until about the close of the war. During most of his service in the Confederate army, Mr. Miller held the rank of orderly sergeant, and he was noted in his regiment for the efficiency and energy with which he discharged the duties of his office. He returned to Missouri after his release from prison and engaged in farming near Darksville, in this county. On the 12th of November, 1868, he was married to Miss Matie, a daughter of Watson and Hannah (Marvin) Carter, of Randolph county, but originally of Virginia. Mr. Miller continued farming with success until 1878, when he was elected assessor of the county and served for four years. In 1882 he was a candidate before the Democratic convention for the nomination to the office of county clerk, but was defeated by Mr. Wight. Since that time he has been deputy circuit clerk, the position he now holds. Mr. Miller was a capable and energetic farmer, and has made a very efficient and popular county officer. He is one of those whold-souled, open-hearted, generous men, who cannot help being kind and accomodating, and whom the people cannot help liking if they would, and would not if they could. He is an outspoken, frank-minded man, a good talker, because he always has something worth listening to to say, and he makes friends wherever he goes as fast as a hungry barn-fowl swallows dough. As honest as daylight, and the soul of cleverness in every way, he is just the man to be popular in any well regulated community, and although he ran on the outside track and came out a neck behind in 1880, only because he thought he could win anyhow,--it is not always the boy who knocks the first apple who gets over the fence with the most fruit. Several bad harvests hardly ever follow each other in succession, and it is not improbable that the next reaping will fill his granary,--at any rate, that seems to be the opinion of the public now, for the people recognize the fact that official advancement could not be more worthily bestowed than on him, a man who has ever stood up for their interests when others were silent, if doing nothing worse, and one whom they know to be capable and honest. The people have a native and incorruptible sense of fairness, and they will not always submit to see a man pushed aside to make place for others no more worthy and capable than he. Mr. Miller is a prominent member of the Odd Fellow's order, having taken the highest degree in the lodge, and he is also a member of the Knights of Honor and of the Masonic order. Mr. and Mrs. Miller have five children: Anna, Maggie, Thomas, Nellie and Mary. Mrs. M. is a member of the Baptist Church.

THOMAS BENTON MINOR

Mr. Minor descends from an old and respected Virginia family. His ancestor of the fourth generation, Joseph Minor, was a well-to-do farmer and worthy citizen of Culpeper county, where he lived until his death. He left a family of several children, including George H. Minor, who, after he grew up, married Mary Gatewood, of the adjoining county of Spottsylvania. She was a daughter of Joseph Gatewood, Sr., of that county, and was one of two sisters in a family of seven. One of her brothers, Joseph Gatewood, Jr., subsequently removed to Kentucky and then to Pike county, Mo., and Dr. R. H. T. Gatewood, of Audrain county, near Wellsville, is his son. George H. Minor and wife, nee Mary Gatewood, also removed to Kentucky and located in Scott county where he lived for many years, but in 1831 he, too, came to Missouri and settled permanently in Randolph county, where he and wife died at advanced ages. They had a family of 18 children, namely: Samuel, born August 8, 1811, married Luvena Stewart, and died in Randolph county; Joseph L., born September 18, 1812, married Sallie A. Cavins, and resides at Huntsville; John, born October 25, 1815, married Mary R. Cook; they became the parents of the subject of this sketch, and will again be referred to further along; Larkin, born May 1, 1816, now deceased; Mary A., born December 19, 1817, became the wife of Henry Thomas, and resides in Chariton county, in Salisbury; Merritt, born February 17, 1819, married Elizabeth Stewart, and died in Randolph county; Eliza, born March 19, 1821, is now deceased; Virginia, born November 6, 1822, is also deceased; Lydia, born March 10, 1824, married Walter Bohn, now of this county; Henry, born October 18, 1825, married Rachel Sears, and lives in Polk county; Harriet, born October 21, 1827, died in this county; Haskins, born April 22, 1829, also died in Randolph county; Elizabeth, born October 27, 1830, is also deceased; Cinsey, born July 1, 1832, married George W. McDonald, and deceased in this county; Josephine, born July 3, 1834, married W. A. Thomas, and died in this county in 1882; Willis, born April 24, 1837, married Martha Epperly and resides in Chariton county, in Salisbury; Sallie, born August 6, 1840, married Andrew Agee and resides in this county; and Lewis, born December 9, 1841, married Barbara Epperly and resides in Salisbury. The father of these, George H. Minor, was a man of sterling character and solid intelligence, and led a life without reproach and was fairly successful as a farmer, also a school teacher. His wife was an estimable lady and greatly loved in her own family, as well as prized by others who knew her as a neighbor and friend.

John Minor, their third son, who afterwards became the father of the subject of this sketch, was still a youth when the family came to Missouri. In early manhood he became a cabinet maker and worked at his trade at Huntsville for many years. He was regarded as a mechanical genius by those who knew him, for there was hardly anything possible to skill and judgment in the use of tools that he could not do. This was especially the case in wood work, and he was considered the best cabinet maker in all this section of country. Later along in life, however, he located on a farm in the county and became comfortably situated. He was for many years an earnest and faithful member of the Missionary Baptist Church and was a zealous worker of the church. He was one of the charter members of the Mt. Salem Church and built the present house of worship at that place. He was an intelligent and close reader of the Bible, and became a licensed preacher, and did much valuable work for his church and the cause of religion, though he never preached a great deal. He was a man of kindly disposition and sober thought, and wielded a marked and beneficial influence on those around him. Self-educated himself, he appreciated the importance of education, and gave his own children the best school advantages his circumstances would allow. He died July 14, 1879, sincerely and deeply regretted by all who knew him. His wife had preceded him to the grave about eight years, dying June 8, 1871. They had a family of twelve children, as follows: John S., born May 7, 1840, married Miss Mary E. Brockman; Samuel C., born March 8, 1842, married Mary E. Buffington; Thomas Benton, the subject of this sketch; Josephus, born February 19, 1846, married Minerva F. Bradley; Melchisedec, born Jan. 9, 1848, married Florence Ford; Monroe, born November 30, 1849, married Laura F. Patrick; Cecelia J., born March 1, 1851, married George T. Burton; Julia A., born July 15, 1853, not married; Isadora, born July 25, 1855, married John H. Cash; Mary Ellen, born February 25, 1857, died in tender years; Stephen W., born July 25, 1858, died in infancy; and Larkin, born March 8, 1862, single. Melchisedec and Isadora reside across in Chariton county, but the others living are residents of this county.

Thomas Benton Minor was born on the family homestead in Randolph county, August 25, 1843. Reared on the farm, he was brought up to habits of industry, and received a good common-school education. But after he grew up he decided to engage in business life, and in 1866, going to Boonville, he embarked in merchandising as salesman in the employ of J. S. McFadden (the husband of Mr. M.'s mother's only living sister, her maiden name being Cecilia Cook). In 1868 he returned to Randolph county and resumed the mercantile business at Huntsville, handling a stock of general merchandise with his father under the firm name of T. B. Minor & Co. In 1873 Mr. M., disposing of his interest to his father, went to Moberly and commenced the clothing and merchant-tailoring business, which he continued until 1875, when he returned to Huntsville and became identified with the insurance business. He has followed this ever since, and with more than ordinary success considering the population of the place and adjacent territory. He has built up the leading insurance agency of Huntsville and one of the prominent agencies of the county. He represents the Mutual Life Insurance Company of New York, the largest insurance company in the world, its cash asset aggregating over $100,000,000, and is the oldest company in the United States. He also represents the following companies which insure against losses by fire, lightning, wind, storm, tornado, etc.: AETna, of Hartford, Conn.; American, of Philadelphia, Pa.; American Central, of St. Louis, Mo.; Continental, of New York, N. Y.; Fire Association of Pennsylvania; Fireman's Fund, of California; German American, of New York, N. Y.; Underwriter's Agency, New York, N. Y.; Insurance Company of North America; Pennsylvania Manufacturers' Insurance Company, Massachusetts; Phoenix, of New York, N. Y.; Springfield Insurance Company, of Mass.; North British and Mercantile, of England; and the Queen Insurance Company, also of England.

Mr. Minor attributes his success to the fact that he has devoted himself, so far as business activities are concerned, exclusively to the insurance business. He says that he has found by experiences that "a man had better do one thing well than try to do many things and do none well." His success in business certainly shows that his ideas and methods are worthy of imitation, whilst it reflects no ordinary credit on his character, energy and intelligence. On the 20th of February, 1879, he was married to Miss Lucy A. Jones, of this county, a daughter of Evan Jones, originally of Lanchire, Wales, and wife, formerly of Covington, Ky. Mrs. Jones' maiden name was Mary A. Harper. She and husband lived in Schuyler county, and their daughter, now Mrs. Minor, was reared in Schuyler and this county, and principally educated at Moberly. Mr. and Mrs. Minor have three children; Mary Dundee, born March 18, 1880; Lucelia, born March 23, 1882, and Byron Benton, born February 25, 1884. Mr. and Mrs. M. are members of the Missionary Baptist Church at Huntsville, and Mr. M. has been a member of the Masonic order since 1869.

On the 18th of November, 1881, was suddenly down of apoplexy in this vicinity, Dr. John C. Oliver, in the meridian of his usefulness, who died at 11 o'clock, A. M., shortly after having received the fatal stroke. To those of the present generation in Randolph county, and particularly in the vicinity of Huntsville, no written record of this good and useful man's life is necessary to inform them whom and what he was, for the worth of his character and services is engraved on the hearts of all who knew him. But soon these of the present will pass away, and it is but the performance of a duty to transmit to posterity some knowledge of this man's life, that the influence of his example may, like the wave of a sea, go vibrating on toward the further shore of time. Not only are such lives as he lived valuable in themselves and to those among whom they live, but the history of their careers are valuable for the lessons they teach to those of the future, and wherever Christian character and successful efforts for the good of humanity are appreciated among men. While his was not a life to attract the attention and admiration of the idle, unthinking world, it was such a life that the more it is studied and the better understood--plain and unobtrusive, but sincere and useful--the more and the better it is appreciated. A man of large humanity and warm sympathies, and one whose highest ambition seemed to be to make himself useful to the utmost of his capacity and opportunities while yet in youth, he determined to devote himself to the medical profession as affording to him, as he believed, a field of the greatest usefulness. Continuing steadfast to this purpose, under the instruction of his father and afterwards by the knowledge acquired at a medical college he became a physician, and he pursued the practice of his chosen calling without interruption and with unabated zeal until he was finally stricken down in death while absent from home attending a patient, --dying, as we have every reason to believe he preferred to die, whilst in the performance of his duty to suffering humanity, for which he had already done so much, and for which it was his greatest pleasure to labor. Possessed of a mind of more than ordinary strength and clearness, and a hardly less devoted student than he was a zealous and faithful practitioner, he inevitably rose to a position of marked honor and distinction in his profession, and his skill and learning were recognized wherever his name was known. No one of his qualities of mind and heart could fail to make a good and useful citizen; so, it is but stating a sequence to say, that as a member of the community in which he lived none were more forward in measures for the common weal than he. Public spirited, and a man of broad and enlightened views, he was equally generous of his time and means when they were required for the general good. In his family he was loved and esteemed with singular tenderness and admiration. As husband and father he seemed to be all to his loved ones they would have him be, and by them his memory is cherished with a sacredness that speaks a noble eulogy of his life around his own hearthstone. In a word, in the character and career of Dr. John C. Oliver were combined as many virtues and as few faults as seldom fall to the lot of a single life. Commenting on his death the Moberly Daily Monitor thus spoke of him: "Dr. Oliver was an old and estimable citizen of Huntsville, a man of clear head and large information, of warm heart and generous impulses, widely known and universally respected. Huntsville has lost one of her best citizens, the Medical Society an able and influential member, Randolph county a prominent and useful resident, and his family a devoted husband and indulgent father. "Dr. Oliver will be greatly missed, and his place in the community will be hard to fill. In every relation of life he was a true and just man, one whose obligations to his family and to society were faithfully and scrupulously fulfilled.The sudden death of Dr. John C. Oliver on Friday was succeeded by the funeral of the remains yesterday. The funeral oration was pronounced by Elder S.Y. Pitts in the chapel of Mt. Pleasant College. The chapel was crowded to its utmost capacity, and a large number were unable to gain admittance. Not only did Huntsville pour out her population to pay the last sad rites to the eminent physician and justly popular citizen, but many persons were in attendance from Moberly and various other parts of the county and State. Such was the high esteem in which the deceased was held that, notwithstanding the inclemency of the weather, Huntsville witnessed yesterday the largest funeral procession in her history. The burial rites were observed in the Masonic fraternity, the deceased having been a Mason for many years. Mr. Colmass, of Kentucky, an eminent Mason and distinguished traveler and lecturer, conducted the ceremony. Here, as in the chapel, the deep solemnity and awe that pervaded the assembly attested the sincere regard and affection in which Dr. Oliver was held. Sorrow was marked on every countenance, and the body was laid to rest amid the tears and sobs of an affectionate people."

John Christian Oliver was born in Fayette county, Ky., May 1, 1825. His father was Dr. Presley T. Oliver, subsequently a leading physician and prominent citizen of Randolph county who is remembered by all who knew him as a man eminently worthy to have been the father of such a son as him, a sketch of whose life is given on these pages. The mother's maiden name was Jane Christian, and both parents were born and reared in Kentucky, where they were married in 1817. In 1850 the father came to Missouri with his family and located in Washington county, but two years later removed to Cooper county, and in 1836 crossed the river and settled in Randolph county, near Benick, where both he and his wife lived until their deaths. He was entirely successful as a physician, both in the practice and in the accumulation of property, and left a comfortable estate at his death. He died on his farm near Renick, June 12, 1863. He was a man of great public spirit, and took an active and intelligent interest in the general affairs of the community and the county. He represented the county in the Legislature in about 1848, and was always regarded as one of its most intelligent and worthy citizens. He was long a member of the church and was more a man of original thought than a follower after others. A man of pleasing and popular address nothing delighted him more than to be among his friends and acquaintances for social converse, and he was always prized among them as an agreeable companion. He preceded his good wife to the grave some two years, a most estimable lady. They had a family of six children: Frederick G. and Robert C., both now deceased; Simeon T., who is now a farmer near Renick; Judith, who is now residing near Renick and is the widow of Noah Martin, deceased; Martha A., who is now the widow of Georg W. True and resides at Moberly; Mary J., who is now the wife of James R. Neale, and resides in Prairie township; and John C., the subject of this sketch, who, in common with his brothers, Frederick G. and Robert C., became a physician. Dr. John C. Oliver was reared in the county and studied medicine under his father. Later along he attended medical college at Cincinnati, Ohio, where he was honorably graduated. Immediately after his graduation he returned to Randolph county and engaged in the practice of his profession. On the 23d of Jan., 1850, he was married to Miss Sarah A. Eddins, an orphan girl, who was reared by her uncle, Robert Mitchell, who resided near Huntsville. For seven years following Dr. John C. Oliver resided on a farm near Renick, where he devoted his whole time and energies to the practice of his profession with his father. In 1857 he removed to a farm four miles north-west of Huntsville where he resided 12 years, coming thence to Huntsville in 1869, the place of his residence from that time until his death. As has been intimated above, his career as a physician was one of eminent success. For years prior to his taking off he had enjoyed an extensive and lucrative practice, and was regarded as one of the most capable physicians throughout the whole section of country in which he lived. He accumulated a handsome estate as the material reward of his long and useful services in the medical profession. He was a student by natural inclination from boyhood, and his studies were not confined to his profession, but extended over a wide field of investigation. Thus it was, that he became a man of more than ordinarily large and thorough information. Though taking a lively interest in the various societies of which he was a member, he was pre-eminently fond of home, and when not occupied with his duties as a physician or citizen, he was invariably found in the bosom of his family. Dr. Oliver had no taste for public life, yet he always did his full duty as a citizen, striving at all times to promote the best interests of the public. All in all, he was one of the truest and worthiest men in genuiness of character with whose citizenship Randolph was ever honored. He left two children: Lelah M., who is now the wife of I. B. Keebaugh, now a prominent druggist of Huntsville, and John E., who is now taking a course of lectures at the Jefferson Medical College of Philadelphia. Mrs. Oliver, the mother of these, is also living, a woman of many estimable qualities, and who is greatly prized as a neighbor and acquaintance by all who know her.

JOSEPH C. SAMUEL

Mr. Samuel is the only son of Thomas J. Samuel, referred to in the sketch of Judge William and Reuben Samuel given above. His father, who is remembered as one of the best men who ever lived in Randolph county, died here in 1875 at the age of 72. He had served three terms as sheriff of the county, and being an early settler, took part in the Indian troubles of the pioneer days of the country. His wife died in 1882 in her fifty-seventh year. She was a Miss Susan A. Murphy before her marriage. Joseph C. Samuel was born near Rencik, July 3, 1850, and was reared in the county. His education was received at Mt. Pleasant College, which he completed in 1869. He then engaged in the mercantile business as clerk in Huntsville, and subsequently clerked for different firms. In 1875 Mr. Samuel engaged in the boot and shoe business which he followed with success for two years. He then became a partner in the lumber trade with Dr. J. D. Hammett. In 1879 he established a real estate and insurance office at Huntsville, the business in which he continued until he was elected to his present position. He was elected to this office in 1882, defeating for the nomination several prominent and popular men in the county. He was chosen at the polls by a majority of over 1,4000. His opponent at the final election was Dr. J. C. Tedford, a man of extensive acquaintance and great personal popularity. These facts speak a higher eulogy upon his character, personal worth and business qualifications than anything could express which might be said here. On the 5th of January, 1876, he was married to Miss Tillie Owen, a amiable and accomplished daughter of Thomas J. Owen. She was taken from him by death August 1, 1882. She left him two children, Ella T. and Louisa. Mr. S. is a member of the I. O. O. F. and Knights of Honor. He is a man of many estimable qualities both of head and heart, and is one of the most popular officers in the county. With his character and integrity, and his close business habits, united with his pleasant manners and kind and accomodating disposition, there can be no doubt that he will remain in his present office as long as he desires the position. None who bear his name are more highly esteemed or more worthy of the estimation in which they are held.

JOHN W. W. SEARS

Mr. Sears comes of illustrious family on both sides. His father and mother, William G. and Mildred B. Sears, died in Virginia, and their fathers were among the heroes of the Revolutionary War. John was born May 29, 1811, in Spottsylvania county, Va., and until he was 16 years old lived on a farm. At that time he learned the carpenter's trade and worked at it until 1835, when he came to Randolph. He has since been a farmer. He has 160 acres of land, and raises corn and other grains common to this section of the country. He is a worthy, industrious man, and is very popular with his neighbors. In the recent civil war he warmly espoused the Southern cause, and inheriting the martial spirit of his ancestors enlisted under Price, and at Boonville received, in the shape of a severe wound, a token of which he will ever feel proud. Mr. Sears was married March 4, 1874, to Mrs. Mollie J. Penney, daughter of John P. Morris and Mary Jane Morris, both natives of Missouri. This has proved a happy union, with the exception that no offspring have blessed it.

A resident of Randolph county for 47 years, Mr. Shaefer has from time to time been prominently identified with its business and public affairs. His name has stood out for nearly half a century as a synonym of integrity of character, personal worth and useful citizenship. He was born in Carlshafen, Hesse, now a part of Prussia, Germany, on the 11th of October, 1814, and was a son of John H. and Mary Hoffman Scheefer (as the name was originally spelled), both of old and respected German families. John C. received an ordinary education in his native language and was brought up to the tailor's trade, which he learned thoroughly, as has ever been required of apprentices in that country. In 1833 he came to America, landing at Baltimore, but soon proceeded to Washington City, where he worked for Christopher Echloff at his trade for about 15 months. He then went to Charlottesville, Va., where he pursued his trade for about three years. While there he met and married Miss Ellen Day, of that place. She was born January 19, 1815, and they were married January 26, 1836. The following year he moved to Missouri and located at Huntsville, where he has lived continuously up to the present time. He followed tailoring here for nearly 30 years. Having a good ordinary education in his native language, he applied himself to study in the English language, and obtained, also, an excellent general English education. A man of superior intelligence and excellent address, he soon attained to considerable prominence at Huntsville and became highly esteemed for his high character and business qualifications. In 1866 he was elected county clerk, and filled the office with efficiency and entire satisfaction to the public. In 1870, his term of official service having expired, he and his sons, C. B. and J. M., engaged in merchandising, and he continued the business a number of years. He then sold out, and has since been identified with no regular business pursuit. He is, however, secretary to the Building and Loan Association, and also secretary for the Independent Coal and Mining Company, in both of which he is a stockholder. Mr. Shaefer has been a member of the Masonic order for over 42 years, and has held the office of secretary during nearly all that time. Mr. and Mrs. Shaefer have had nine children: Sophia M., who died in 1876, the wife of Dr. Waldo Lewis, or rather his widow, for he preceded her to the grave some 10 years; Dabney G., who died at the age 17; August G., who died in 1876, aged 33; Jennie, now Mrs. V. B. Calhoun; Mary E., femme libre; Kate, now Mrs. John D. Gregory, of Norborne, Mo.; Dora, a popular teacher of the county; Charles B., cashier in the Randolph Bank of Moberly, and James M., of Taylor's dry goods store. Mr. and Mrs. Shaefer have been members of the Baptist Church for nearly 50 years.

CHARLES W. SHORES

This successful farmer and respected citizen of Silver Creek township, residing on a handsome homestead which he owns, situated on section 30, in township 53, and range 15, near Huntsville, is a native of Howard county, born May 20, 1835, and was a son of Rev. William and Susan R. (Johnson) Shores, he originally of Tennessee, and she of Virginia. The father was for many years a Methodist preacher and was a member of the Missouri Conference of the M. E. Church South. He was also a farmer and had an excellent homestead six miles north of Fayette where he lived until his death, which occurred in January, 1872. He had been a minister of the gospel from early manhood and was also in his earlier years a skillful carpenter. Charles W. Shores received a good education as he grew up and afterwards taught school until the outbreak of the war. He then served six months under Gen. Price and during that time was in battle at Pea Ridge. In 1862 he went West to the mountains and was engaged in mining, trading, merchandising, etc., until 1866, when he returned to Howard county. He subsequently taught school in Howard and Randolph counties and was married in this county September 15, 1870, to Miss Lou C. Walden, a daughter of William E. and Emily (Hurt) Walden, of Randolph county, born May 12, 1842. Her father was originally from Kentucky and her mother from Howard county. Judge Walden served as judge of the court for six years in this county.

SHORES (Continued)

Mr. Shores settled on the Joshua Hurt farm, having bought it in 1868, and lived on it until the spring of 1883, when, having bought the Walden farm, also, he came to this place where he has since resided. He raises considerable stock, principally cattle and hogs, and also largely raises wheat and corn. Mr. and Mrs. Shores have two children, Harry Hurt and Charles Edward. Their eldest, Anna Nora, died in tender years. He is a member of the M. E. Church South, and his wife of the Cumberland Presbyterian Church.

Mr. Taylor, an energetic and successful young business man of Huntsville, is a son of Dr. W. H. Taylor, whose sketch precedes this, and was born at this place October 8, 1858, being the youngest in his father's family. He was reared at Huntsville and educated at Mt. Pleasant College, taking a regular course in that institution and graduating with credit in the class of 1878 under the presidency of Rev. Dr. Baker. Having made up his mind to devote himself to a business life, immediately after his graduation he entered the drug store of Woodbury & Baker to learn the practical details of merchandising. Later along he became a partner with Dr. Fort in the drug business, under the firm name of Fort & Taylor, and made a regular study of pharmacy. He is now, and has been for some time past, a registered druggist of the county. Some two years ago Mr. L. B. Keebaugh bought Dr. Fort's interest in the store and the firm has since been Taylor & Keebaugh. This is one of the leading drug firms of Huntsville, and is one of the oldest and best known houses in the drug line in the county. Messrs. Taylor & Keebaugh have greatly improved the stock of drugs and have considerably increased it since they became proprietors of the house, and its trade has had a marked increase. Both being men of first-class business qualifications, they carry on their business with that intelligence and enterprise which cannot fail of success. Courteous and polite to all, and perfectly fair in their dealings with customers, they have the full confidence of the community, and are popular not only as druggists, but personally as neighbors and citizens. Mr. Taylor is thoroughly conversant with all the details of his business, and is a capable and skillful druggist. The fact that his store is largely patronized by physicians, who are always exacting in the compounding of their prescriptions, shows how he is regarded as a druggist by those most capable of judging. Mr. Taylor is a stockholder of the gas company of this city and in the Building and Loan Association, and in the Raker and Stacker Manufacturing Company.

Mr. Taylor, although still comparatively a young man, and having started out in life for himself on reaching his sixteenth year, with no means, is now one of the prominent and substantial business men of Randolph county. He has just cause to be satisfied with his past, and to look with hope for a more than ordinarily prosperous future. Possessing many of the stronger and better qualities and qualifications for a successful life in business, he is at the same time favored with that integrity of character and pleasant and accommodating disposition which challenges the respect and esteem of all with whom he is thrown in contact. He is a native of Pennsylvania, born July 21, 1850, and a son of John M. and Isabella (Silverwood) Taylor, both of old and respected Pennsylvania families, and both of English descent. John N. was reared in Pennsylvania up to the age of 16; occupying his time to good advantage either at school or assisting in his father's store. But of an enterprising disposition and desiring to accomplish something in life without waiting until he attained manhood, he struck out for the great West, and finally called a halt at Sigourney, Iowa, where he worked at the cabinet-maker's trade. After working there three years he went over to Richland, in the same state, where he was married to Miss Eliza J. Stroup, a daughter of John Stroup, formerly of Pennsylvania, but an early settler of Keokuk county, Iowa, and one of the prominent and influential men of that county. This was the 25th of August, 1870, and the following week after his marriage Mr. Taylor, instead of settling in Iowa, came promptly to Missouri to seek a location for the purpose of carrying on his trade. Selecting Huntsville, he went to work here with the little means he had to establish himself in life. His career since has been one of unusual success. He soon had a large furniture store, and in eight years he added a carpet department. Later along he established a vehicle warehouse, opening a fine stock of wagons and buggies. He now does the largest business in his line of any man in the county, and has one of the largest establishments in North-east Missouri. With characteristic enterprise, when the contract was to be let for the erection of the courthouse at this place, he, with five other gentlemen, put in their bid, which was accepted, and they are now carrying on the work of building that structure. He also has a branch house at Salisbury in charge of his brother, William H. Taylor, where he carries a stock representing over $5,000. Such a record of business success is rarely equaled, and reflects the highest credit on his character and business qualifications. He says the secret of his success is that he pushes everything for all it is worth and deals fairly at all times and in all circumstances. He has thus not only succeeded, but has won the confidence and esteem of the public. No man in Huntsville stands higher than he. Mr. and Mrs. T. have four children: Mary, Maud S., Lucile G. and Lida. They are members of the Baptist Church.

The positions of prominence in the various walks of life we now see occupied by men well advanced in years will soon be taken by younger men, as their seniors gradually pass off the stage of human activity by superannuation and death. Whom these successors are to be depends almost alone upon the exertions and ambition of each individual. Two youths may start out in life side, and with equal intelligence and advantages. One will achieve marked success and rise to prominence and influence. The other will fail and remain in obscurity. The true secret of their varying fortune lies in the difference of spirit which animates them and the difference of application and perseverance with which they pursue their respective careers in life. It was a frequent remark of John Stuart Mill, one of the greatest economists and philosophers of modern times that "What I could do, could assuredly be done by any boy or girl of average capacity and healthy physical constitution." His position, as is well known, was, that there is not so much difference in capacities of individuals as is generally imagined; and that it is by industry and perseverance almost alone, occupations being the same, that distinctions ultimately obtain. While it may be going too far to follow him to the end in this view, he is certainly right to a very great extent; and no more conclusive evidence of a young man's ultimate prominence in his calling can be given than that he possesses these qualities. In the medical profession at this place we have more than one physician whose career illustrates this doctrine of Mill; men who have risen in the absence of early advantages to success and local prominence in their profession, and solely by their own industry and perseverance as students and practitioners; and taking the secret of their success as a criterion to judge the future of the younger members of the profession, it is not difficult to point out those who are to occupy the places of these old and prominent physicians when they have passed off the stage of action. Prominent among this class of young men in Randolph county is without question the subject of the present sketch. A young man of sterling natural intelligence and good constitution, and having devoted himself to the medical profession, he has pursued his studies and attended to his practice with that industry and resolution that, if continued, cannot fail to place him in the front rank of his profession in Randolph county. So as time rolls on, he will probably become one of the foremost physicians of the county and a leading, influential citizen, while others, school-mates, of his, perhaps, without the qualities he possesses, in the years to come, will still find themselves as little distinguished among their fellow-men as when he and they started out youths together. It is such representative citizens as are here spoken of, both present and prospective, whose sketches it is desired to give in this volume, and therefore the sketch of Dr. Taylor, Jr., properly finds a place on these pages. Dr. Joseph W. Taylor is a son of Dr. William H. Taylor whose sketch follows this, and was born at Huntsville October 21, 1854. He was educated at Mt. Pleasant College, and intended when in youth to devote himself to the profession of pharmacy. In pursuance of this purpose he studied pharmacy, and in 1874 took a course of pharmaceutical lectures at Louisville, Ky. Returning home after this, he was engaged in clerking at Huntsville, but soon decided to follow the example of his father and become a physician. He read medicine under his father for two years, and applied himself to study with great assiduity and perseverance. In 1876 he entered the Medical Department of the University of Louisville, Kentucky, where he took a course in medicine and surgery, and continuing his studies, in 1877, he then attended the Jefferson Medical College at Philadelphia, from which he graduated with marked credit in 1878. Coming home now to Huntsville, he engaged in the practice with his father and has made gratifying progress in his profession as a practitioner. He is studious and progressive in his idea and faithful and attentive to his practice, and is rapidly winning the confidence of the community in his skill and ability as a physician, as he has always had it personally and in the ordinary affairs of life. On the 24th of Sept. 1878, Dr. Taylor was married to Miss Jennie B. Rutherford, a daughter of W. T. Rutherford. They have two children, Reba and Willie. Mrs. T. is a member of the Christian Church, and the Dr. is a member of the I. O. O. F. and of the Knights of Honor.
