The first county court in Randolph county was held at the house of Blandermin Smith Feb. 2, 1829. The first circuit court was held at the home of William Goggin in 1829. Hon. David Todd of Boone Co. was the presiding judge; Robert Wilson cler, Hancock Jackson, sheriff, and James Gordon, prosecuting attorney.

The first court house contract was let June 13, 1831. It was completed some time in the fall of the next year. It was brick, two story, square form, with one room below used as the court room and three above used as jury rooms. One of these rooms was for a number of years used as a Masonic hall, and it was there that the first Masonic meeting in Huntsville was held. In Aug. 1839 a 3 week revival was held by A. P. Williams, Baptist Minister, in the building. The building cost $2,400. It was condemned and torn down in the winter of '58 or spring of '59. The members of the Christian congregation bought the bricks and built a church.

The second court house was completed in 1860 by Henry Austin, the contractor. It cost $15,000 and was a two story brick. It burned Aug. 12, 1882.

A third court house was commenced in the fall of 1883 and completed in April 1884. J. M. Hammett, W. T. Rutherford, E. P. Kerby, John N. Taylor, G. W. Taylor, and R. E. Lewis were the contractors and James McGrath of St. Louis, was the architect. It was built for about $35,000, a two story brick, with eleven rooms and surmounted with a dome containing a town clock.

The second jail was erected in 1865 but was considered unsafe and torn down in 1871, the material being used in part for the construction of the present jail, which is built of brick and stone. The front portion of the jail is brick, and is the residence of the jailer.

The county poor farm was purchased in March 1878 from John H. Austin for $2,000. The poor farm building is made of brick, and that, with outbuildings, afford room for about 50 paupers.

The first mill was built in the county in 1820 and was known as Hickman's Mill. At first the mill only ground corn, which had to be sifted after it was ground, as there were no bolts in the mill. There were only one run of buhrs, which, as well as the mill irons were brought from St. Louis. These cost $50 and were shipped up the Missouri River. Before the mill was built, grain had to be taken to Snoddy's Mill near Glasgow.

The first bridge of any importance, built in the county, was built over the east fork of the Chariton river on the first high bank over Baker's ford in 1829. The citizens paid half of the cost and the county court the rest. Henry B. Owen was the contractor and received $1.65 for building half the bridge. In 1830 Nicholas Dysart was allowed $56 for assessing the county.

The first settler in the county was (Squire Holman family) William Holman. They came from Madison county, Ky. and settled just a few miles south of Old Franklin (Howard county, Mo.) in 1817. In the spring of 1818 they moved to Silver Spring (now Randolph county). His brother Joseph Holman and James Dysart were also early settlers.

The first school ever taught was about 1822 by Jack Dysart (Col. of the militia later). This school was taught in a log house on Foster's Prairie about seven or eight miles southwest of the town of Huntsville.

The first church was a log house (Baptist) near Silver Creek and Elder Merriman preached the first sermon (1822-25). Before that the settlers had gone to Mr. Aarat in Howard county to hear Elder Edward Turner.

The first store opened was by Daniel G. Davie near the residence of William Goggins, which site later was made Huntsville.

The first mail was carried on horseback.

JAMES H. BAGBY

Mr. Bagby, one of the energetic and successful men of this township, and one of its highly respected citizens, was left an orphan when but nine years of age, his mother having died in 1838, and his father in 1847. His parents were William and Virginia (Harrison) Bagby, his father a carpenter by trade, and originally from Kentucky, and his mother of the well-known Harrison family, and formerly of Virginia, but by way of Kentucky to this State. Their home was near Roanoke, in Randolph county, where James H. was born, September 20, 1834. They had but one other child, William H., now a well-to-do farmer of this county. However, after the mother's death, the father married Miss Nancy H., a daughter of Samuel C. Davis, of Randolph county, by whom he had two other children, Robert J. and Virginia C., now Mrs. J. H. Mathis, of Callao. The mother of these two children, after their father's death, married James D. Burton, but she is now also deceased. After his father's death, James went to work for William R. Ferguson, of this county, with with whom he remained until he was 19 years of age. But in early years he showed a marked preference for mechanical employment, and he evinced a high order of genius and skill in devising, inventing and working machinery. Indeed, he was noted throughout the country round about where he lived for his aptitude in this direction, and at the age of 19, although he had little or no opportunities to improve his natural genius and skill, he was called upon by Rev. Samuel C. Davis, one of the best men and ablest ministers Randolph county ever produced, to reconstruct and rebuild the latter's mill. Young Bagby undertook this difficult and responsible task without hesitation and performed it with such success and so satisfactorily to Mr. Davis that the latter gave him a third interest in the mill for his work. Mr. Bagby ran the mill for a number of years, and subsequently became full owner of it. Later along he erected a new mill on the site of the old, which he has since run. This has both steam and water power, and is one of the best mills in this part of the county. Mr. Bagby also bought a part of the old Davis homestead from Rev. Mr. Davis, the latter taking the former's note of word in payment. He paid that off, and afterwards bought the whole place, a fine farm of 276 acres, which he has owned for years. Mr. Bagby has been running his mill and farm continuously, and on the latter makes a specialty of stock-raising in which he is quite successful. Mr. Bagby married Miss Nancy H. Ferguson, a daughter of William I. Ferguson, who reared Mr. Bagby. Mr. and Mrs. Bagby have four children: Lou, Orpha, Thomas N. and Kate, all at home. Mr. and Mrs. B. are members of the Cumberland Presbyterian Church.

No biographical conspectus of Huntsville would be at all just or accurate which should not give a prominent and worthy place to a sketch of the life of the subject of this sketch, for the careers of few, if of any, have been more intimately and creditably interwoven with its history than that of Dr. Fort. And an outline of his life and family antecedents will be found interesting, even outside of his own identification with this place. Dr. Fort has not become a distinguished man in the broader acceptation of that term, but his life has been a more than ordinarily active one, and one of much practical value to those among whom he has lived. Nor can the writer forbear the expression of the opinion that if, instead of being a representative of, he had been an exception to, the class whom Wordsworth describes--

"Nor having e'er, as life advanced, been led
By circumstances to take unto the height
The measure of themselves,"-- if he had been led by circumstances to fill an exalted position in the world, he would have acquitted himself with high honor and with credit to the station he occupied, for his qualities of mind and character are such that they would not prove unequal to the responsibilities of any place in life open to his advancement. Dr. Fort is a native of Randolph county, born four miles west of Huntsville, and on the 31st of August, 1826. His parents were pioneer settlers of Randolph county, and his father's parents were among the first settlers of Davidson county, Tenn., locating on the site of the present city of Nashville in 1793, when there was only a block-house standing where there now is a city of 75,000 inhabitants. Josiah and Piety Fort, the grandparents of Dr. Fort, located at Nashville from North Carolina, and William Fort, his father, was born in the block-house at that place October 19, 1793, his parents not then having made any improvements of their own. William Fort grew up in Tennessee, and considering the newness of the country in which he lived and his opportunities, obtained a more than ordinarily good education. He subsequently read medicine and, as the old citizens of Randolph county know, he was for many years a successful and prominent physician. In 1815 he was married in Robertson county, Tenn., to Miss Patsey Gorham, and five years afterwards he came to Randolph county and located four miles west of Huntsville, where he lived to old age and until his death. Randolph county was then a wilderness, and his name justly occupies a place among those of its pioneer settlers. The place of his location here was, and is still known as Medical Springs, and there he opened salt works in 1823 and worked them for about 20 years, supplying salt for Randolph and Macon counties. He and his good wife reared a family of six children: Henry T., now of Moberly; Martha E., the wife of A. W. Burton, both of whom, however, are now deceased; Amanda C., the widow of Joseph M. Hammett; Frances C., the wife of Giles F. Cook, but both are now deceased; Andrew J.

a prominent stock man in Montana Territory; and John T. Dr. Fort was reared on the farm near Huntsville and received a thorough education, taking, besides a general course, a complete classical course. His preceptor was Hugh McEwing, a Scotch scholar and a man of fine education. Mr. McEwing taught at Dr. Fort's father's residence, and was reputed to be the best teacher in this section of the State at that time. His attainments were substantial and thorough, rather than flashy and superficial, and he brought up his pupils in the same way. At the age of 18 young Fort began the study of medicine under his father, and under the latter's instruction continued study until 1846, he entered the Medical Department of the State University, which was located at St. Louis. He took two regular courses of lectures in medicine and graduated with distinction in 1848. Immediately following his graduation Dr. Fort began the practice of his profession at his old home, with the view of relieving his father of much of the burden of a large practice and of establishing himself in life, but he was young and full of enterprise and the spirit of adventure. About this time the California gold excitement broke out and, like many of the young men of Missouri and all over the civilized world, he was attracted to the Midas land beyond the Cordilleras by the genii stories of Pactolian sands that glistened in the sunlight in the far off garden of the new found Hesperides. He spent two years in California, but found it more congenial, if not more profitable, to relieve suffering for gold than to dig for it. While there he was engaged in the practice, with excellent success, at Red Bluff. Returning to old Missouri in 1852, and desiring to make himself thorough in his profession, so far as the instructions of the schools go, the following winter he took a special course of lectures in the Medical Department of the St. Louis University, and in the spring of 1854 located at McGee College, in Macon county. Dr. Fort continued the practice there for two years and then returned to the vicinity of his old home in Randolph county. In 1860 he went to Robertson county, Tenn., locating at the place where his mother was born and reared, and continued the practice at that place for 15 years. He became very successful as a physician in Tennessee, and accumulated no inconsiderable evidences of prosperity. Returning to Randolph county in 1875, he has since been engaged in the practice at Huntsville. For nearly 10 years he has held the place here of one of the leading physicians of the county. No physician stands higher in the practice in this community than Dr. Fort does at Huntsville. His success has been uninterrupted, both in relieving the suffering and in material affairs. Dr. Fort has been thrice married. To his first wife, formerly Miss Susan F. Cummins, he was married March 1, 1848, immediately after receiving his diploma at the medical college. She survived her marriage nine years, leaving him two children at her death:

Susan F., who died in girlhood, and Martha, the wife of Thomas M. Elmore, editor of the Huntsville Herald. Three other children, sons, preceded their mother to the grave. In 1860 he was married to Miss Emily Fort, a cousin-germane, of Tennessee. She died in 1870, and to his present wife, formerly Miss Ellen C. Fort, a sister to his second wife, he was married some 12 years ago. Dr. Fort has not confined his activities to the medical profession alone. He has for years been quite prominently identified with business affairs, public life and the benevolent societies. For four years he was a partner with his brother, Henry Fort, in merchandising at Ft. Henry. For several years he carried on the drug business at Huntsville, and during 1879 and 1880 he was a partner with his son-in-law, T. M. Elmore, in the proprietorship and publication of the Herald at this place. He was the editor of the Herald during that time, and he has long been known as a valuable newspaper correspondent from this point. He contributed very materially to the maintenance of the county seat at Huntsville by the vigorous, unanswerable arguments he published on that question. He has long been recognized as one of the most public-spirited citizens of the place and has done much to promote its prosperity. He has served in the city council, and was for several years mayor of the city. Dr. Fort is a Royal Arch Mason, and has been a member of the Masonic order for nearly 30 years, being now treasurer of the lodge at Huntsville. He is also a member of the Select Knights and one of the Knights of Honor. In recognition of his prominence in his profession he has been given, and now holds, the position of examining surgeon of the Masonic Mutual Aid Society, and is also examining surgeon of the South-west Aid Society, of the New York Life Insurance Company, and of the Mutual Life Insurance Company.

and his trade and later along became somewhat identified with farming. He was born in 1789, and died in 1872. A. F. was born in St. Charles county January 20, 1834, and was reared in his native county. April 26, 1856, he was married to Miss Mary Fairchild, formerly of Warsaw, Ill. She was a daughter of Capt. O. B. Fairchild, and her mother's maiden name was Ada W. Brown. Her father was for many years a well known steamer captain on the Mississippi, and lost his life on the steamer Fashion between Memphis and New Orleans, his body never being recovered from the river. He was made the hero of one of John Gay's poems entitled "James Bludsoe," the poem having been a friend of Capt. Fairchild, and was afterwards private secretary to President Lincoln. Mrs. Fairchild still survives and finds a welcome and pleasant home with her daughter, Mrs. Gill. About the time of his marriage, Mr. Gill removed to Randolph county, and has since been engaged in farming in this county. He has a comfortable homestead and his life has been one of satisfactory success. Mr. and Mrs. Gill have three children: Ada, Everett and Emma.

Mr. Gill was a son of John and Mary (Watts) Gill, from Boyle county, Ky., who came to Missouri in 1811. The father was a carpenter by trade, and followed that occupation in St. Louis for three years after coming to this then territory. From St. Louis he removed to St. Charles county, where he continued his trade and later along became somewhat identified with farming. He was born in 1789, and died in 1872. A. GILL (Continued) CHARLES S. HANNETT

Mr. G. is a member of the C. P. Church, and his wife is a member of the Baptist denomination. Mr. Gill was clerk of township 53, range 15, for five years, and has also served as county coroner. Mrs. Gill has but one sister surviving, Emma, who is now the wife of Judge James H. Vail, of Milner, Dak. He was for a number of years judge of the Ironton (Mo.) judicial circuit. He is popularly fitted for the successful discharge of the duties of his position. He was a son of Joseph M. Hannett, whose sketch precedes this, and when this fact is stated, a great deal is said for his character as a citizen and his success as a business man. Born on the old family homestead, near Huntsville, on the 10th of May, 1845, he was reared on the farm, and when he came up, not only had good common school advantages, but the benefit of a general and scientific course at Mt. Pleasant College. Nothing served so well to fix the elementary principles of a common English education in one's mind as teaching, and with this object in view as well as anything else, young Hannett taught school for nearly a year after leaving college. He then, in keeping with habits and traditions with his family, engaged in farming and stock-raising, with which he is still prominently identified. He has a fine farm of 1,000 acres of land, and deals in cattle, hogs and wheat quite extensively. He is also a member of the firm of Hall & Hannett Bros., which owns a large ranch and cattle interests in New Mexico and

Mr. Hammett has been cashier of this well-known banking institution since 1876, and being a thoroughly qualified business man, both generally and in the banking business, and exceptionally well posted as to the resources and reputation of the people among whom principally his bank does business (having been born and reared near Huntsville), he is peculiarly fitted for the successful discharge of the duties of his position. He was a son of Joseph M. Hammett, whose sketch precedes this, and when this fact is stated, a great deal is said for his character as a citizen and his success as a business man. Born on the old family homestead, near Huntsville, on the 30th of May, 1845, he was reared on the farm, and when he came up, not only had good common school advantages, but the benefit of a general and scientific course at Mt. He then, in keeping with habits and traditions with his family, engaged in farming and stock-raising, with which he is still prominently identified. He has a fine farm of 1,000 acres of land, and deals in cattle, hogs and mules quite exclusively. He is also a member of the firm of Hall & Hammett Bros., which owns a large ranch and cattle interests in New Mexico and

HAMMETT (Continued)

Colorado, representing a value of nearly $300,000. Mr. Hammett has charge of these interests, and makes a trip every few months to the West to look after them. He is also a member of the firm of Samuel & Hammett, leading real estate dealers of Huntsville. He is likewise treasurer of the Building and Loan Association. Mr. Hammett has been entirely successful in all his business enterprises, and while in general affairs he is regarded as a man of superior judgment and business qualifications, it is as a financier that he has won his chief reputation. He has been cashier of the banking house with which he is now connected for a period of about 10 years, and while he has never been regarded as unjustly exacting in the matter of securities or illiberal in making loans, it stands out as a distinguishing fact in his record as a banker that he has never made a bad loan nor failed to collect a debt which was contracted by him or through his advice. There is probably not another cashier in the State of Missouri of whom this can be said with truth. He is a man of more than ordinary penetration of mind, clear in judgment almost as a cloudless day, and never acts in business matters of importance, or in any other affair of moment, without first considering all the circumstances connected with it--what is necessary to be done, what effect his own course will have, and what the result is likely to be. In business affairs, and especially in financial matters, his opinion is sought and his judgment deferred to by many of the most intelligent business men of this section of the county, and indeed wherever he is known. In the discharge of his business he is quick and accurate, and always urbane and polite, and he is liked hardly less for his pleasant, agreeable manners than he is esteemed for his ability as a business man. Personally he is quite sociable and, in common with his brothers, he is plain and unassuming. While there is nothing light or frivolous in his character, he is at the same time quite companionable, not to say jovial, when free from business cares, and is always welcomed in every circle where he is known. Among the bankers of the State he has an enviable reputation, for it is recognized by all that he has had not a little to do with making the house with which he is now connected the substantial, able financial institution which it is now conceded to be. On the 25th of December, 1869, Mr. Hammett was married to Miss Fannie Jackson, a daughter of Able Jackson, a prominent citizen of Howard county. They have three children: Ladie Bell, Anna and Able M. Mrs. Hammett is a member of the M. E. Church South.

FRANCIS M. HAMMETT

Mr. Hammett, as shown by the sketch of his father, which precedes this, was the eldest in his father's family of children, and was born on the old Hammett homestead near Huntsville on the 19th of August, 1831. He was brought up on the farm and to know all about hard work by experience; but, naturally of industrious habits, this was not as distasteful to him as it otherwise might have been, while at the same time it had the effect to develop physical strength and insure him a good constitution well fitted for the activities of life. Colleges had not been founded here when he came up, and he therefore had to rely on the neighborhood schools for instruction and on study at home. Inheriting his father's taste, however, for books, notwithstanding the limited extent of his school advantages, he early succeeded in acquiring a more than average common English education for that time, principally by self-culture or study at home. He commenced in the world for himself as a school teacher, and being a young man of industry and practical ideas, as well as of good education, he became quite successful and popular as a teacher. He spent a great deal of his time as purchasing agent for buyers of stock and tobacco outside of the county, and thus became generally acquainted with the people of the adjoining counties, as well as making some money. He was soon able to buy stock on his own account, and he was generally successful in his stock transactions. In 1850 he, like thousands of others in Missouri and everywhere else, was taken with the California fever and made a trip to the golden shores of the Pacific. He was in California for about a year, engaged principally in mining, and, as in everything else, he was satisfactorily successful out there. Returning home, however, he resumed the stock business and engaged in farming. From that time to this he has been interested in these industries, and, as the mantle of the father falls to the son, so he, like his father, has come to the front as a farmer and stock-raiser, and in everything else to which he has turned his attention. He is now one of the largest land holders in the county, and his homestead of 750 acres is without a superior as a grain and stock farm in the county. It is a handsomely improved place, well arranged with regard to fields and pastures, and the buildings are commodious and tastily constructed. Everything about the place, in short, shows that its proprietor is a modern, progressive agriculturist. On his farms Mr. Hammett keeps usually about 500 head of cattle. He is also a partner in the firm of Hammett & Hall, who have large stock interests--ranches and cattle--in Colorado and New Mexico, interests representing a value of nearly $300,000. To these interests Charles H. Hammett gives his personal attention, going out to look after their affairs in the West every few months. Mr. Hammett is also engaged in the banking business, and is president of the banking house mentioned above. This is one of the leading banking institutions in the county, and its reputation for stability is without a superior in this section of the State. He gives the affairs of this institution his personal attention. He succeeded his father in the presidency of the bank, and is carrying it forward in that career of prosperity and popularity in business circles and with the public, in which it has been conducted from the beginning. His personal reputation as a man of high character and superior business qualifications goes far to give this institution the enviable standing it has. Mr. Hammett has made a special study of the banking business, and, being a man of sober judgment and clear intelligence, he could not fail of success in this branch of business. Personally, the same respect and esteem in which his father was held is descending to him, and already he has the confidence and respectful consideration of all who know him. He is a sociable, plain, unassuming man, and a man of great solidity of character and personal worth. On the 23d of November, 1854, Mr. Hammett was married to Miss Mary S. Robertson, a daughter of Hiram Robertson, a prominent citizen of this county. They have had a family of ten children: Joella, the wife of A. M. Ellington; Benjamin H., William F., assistant cashier of the bank; Sidney A., the wife of Thomas Roberts; Stonie, James L., now in Colorado on the stock ranch; John H., Clarence J., Susan A. and Edwin De Young, the last three still children at home. Mr. Hammett and wife are members of the Cumberland Presbyterian Church. Mr. Hammett is one of the public spirited citizens of this part of the county, and is ever ready to assist every enterprise, material or otherwise, that promises well for the commonwealth.

That one is a representative of this family is sufficient assurance to those who know the family that he is a worthy and valuable citizen. And this is said not in any spirit of flattery, for no people are plainer and more unassuming than the Hammetts, but simply as a fact to which, so far as the writer knows, there is not a single exception. Certainly the subject of the present sketch forms no exception to the well known character and reputation of the family whose name he bears. His career has been confined to the sphere of private life, but has been one of great activity, singular good judgment and abundant success, and, like his father, he is one of the substantial men of the county. James W. Hammett, the second son of his father's family of children, was born on the old Hammett plantation, near Wentzville, January 1, 1836, and his youth was characterized by very much the same experiences through which his father passed. In 1855, at the age of 21, he started out in life for himself, and went over into Mason county and engaged in farming. He was never troubled with any distasteful work, and entering upon the duties of

The life of Joseph M. Hammett, deceased, father of J. W. Hammett, was one of more than ordinary value to Randolph county in many particulars, in material affairs, as a public-spirited citizen and otherwise; but in no respect was it of as great value as in the worthy citizens he has left to the county, who bear his name. That one is a representative of this family is sufficient assurance to those who know the family that he is a worthy and valuable citizen. And this is said not in any spirit of flattery, for no people are plainer and more unassuming than the Hammetts, but simply as a fact to which, so far as the writer knows, there is not a single exception. He was never troubled with any distasteful work, and entering upon the duties of farming with energy and resolution, and being a man of good habits and an excellent manager, he of course prospered. Feeling the need of a wife to preside over his home, which his own industry had provided, and having offered his heart and hand to a young lady eminently worthy of both, on the 15th of May, 1856, he was united in marriage to Miss Mary A. Haines, a daughter of Jonathan Haines, a respected citizen of Randolph county. Mr. Hammett continued farming in Macon county for about 14 years and made a large farm there, a place of about 400 acres, which he still owns. His place is near Callao and also dealing quite extensively in tobacco, and buying and selling real estate and handling stock; in fact, since 1867, and indeed since prior to that time he has given his whole attention to various lines of business, and has been successful in all of them. Returning to Randolph county later along, he located on a farm near Huntsville, which he owns, a farm of nearly 400 acres, where he has continued farming, not only carrying on this place, but also superintending another farm of nearly 500 acres in the north-western part of the county which he owns. He is still handling stock quite extensively, including cattle, hogs and mules, and is engaged in the real estate business at Huntsville, buying, selling, trading, renting, etc., farms, raw land, town property, and other real estate, and he himself owns some $10,000 worth of town property in this city, including residences, business houses, etc. He is also a member of the banking firm of J. M. Hammett & Sons. Mr. Hammett, as these facts show, is one of the live, pushing, enterprising men of Randolph county, and is eminently worthy to bear the honored name he has inherited from his father. In every relation of life he is without reproach. Mr. and Mrs. Hammett have had a family of seven children: Mary E., now Mrs. H. P. Hunter; Betzie B., now Mrs. F. P. Willey, of Moberly, Randolph county; Joseph P., who has charge of the 500-acre farm in the northwestern part of the county; James H., Rebecca, Evan H. and Allie J. Hammett. Mr. and Mrs. Hammett are members of the Cumberland Presbyterian Church.

Joseph M. Hammett died at his residence in Huntsville on the 9th day of June, 1883. The death of no citizen of Randolph county ever caused more general and sincere regret throughout the county than that of Joseph M. Hammett. He had been a resident of the county for 56 years, and for a generation was prominent in its agricultural and business affairs and in the social life of its people. From a youth without means and with very limited educational advantages, he came up in the world to a position of comparative affluence, and made for himself a name for useful citizenship that will survive where his life was spent long after the marble that now marks his last resting-place shall have crumbled into dust. His life was an abundant success, not only in material affairs, but in making himself useful to those among whom he lived; and above all in winning and retaining the respect and esteem of his fellow-citizens, of which he was eminently worthy, and which when once won were never for a moment withdrawn. In every biographical history of Randolph county worthy of such a title, the name that heads this sketch must ever occupy a prominent place on its pages. As an agriculturist he was enterprising, progressive and successful--the leader by all odds of those around him; in business affairs he was energetic, clear-headed and honorable; and he founded one of the best and most reputable banking houses in the county, an institution of which he was the able head for years, and until his death; and as a citizen he was public-spirited, always to the front in every movement designed for the public good, and only less generous of his personal services and advice than of his private means. To speak of this man's life as a neighbor and friend and in his family, would be to characterize one who was possessed of as few faults and as many estimable qualities in these particulars, as in most others, as are seldom united in one individual. The most eloquent tribute that could be paid to the character of a good and useful man was the profound and universal sorrow with which the news of Joseph Hammett's death was received by his neighbors and friends on the day that he yielded his body to the earth and his spirit to the God who gave it. As a husband, his memory is cherished by his widow is cherished by his widow, a good and true woman, worthy to have been the wife of such a man, as that of the kindest and best of men, ever faithful and devoted to his wife and children; and as a father, his life is looked to as worthy of all imitation. No man was ever more loved and venerated in his own family; and well he might be, for few, if any, in this world of human weaknesses was ever a kinder and more exemplary husband and father. All in all, Joseph Hammett was such a man as fathers might wish their sons to be, and such a citizen as any community might well be proud to claim. Let us, therefore, give a brief sketch of this man's life--a sketch that we are not vain enough to believe can add anything to the name he has left behind, but one given only that we may show that we esteem his life and character as having been of the first importance as a representative citizen of Randolph county. Joseph Miller Hammett was born in Warren county, Ky., December 25, 1809. His father, Elijah Hammett, was a native of South Carolina, in which State the ancestry of the family have been settled since long prior to the Revolution. The mother, before her marriage, was a Miss Mary Snodgrass, a native of Kentucky, in which they were married, Elijah Hammett having come out to Kentucky with his parents when quite young. The mother was a daughter of David Snodgrass, a prominent citizen of Warren county, Ky., and a leading man in the official and military affairs in that section of the State. Joseph M. Hammett was reared on his father's farm, in Warren county, up to the age of 16, when, in 1826, the family removed to Missouri and located, first in Howard county, but two years later came to Randolph county, where the parents made their home. Here the father entered land, and with the assistance of his son, Joseph M., improved a farm on which the former lived for many years. He died, however, at Waco, Tex., in 1857, having gone to that State for a visit. The mother died in this county in 1843. Joseph M. was the only son in their family of five children, the daughters being Mary, Rebecca, Martha and Louisa, two of whom only are living--Martha and Louisa, who are married and are residents of Texas. Joseph M. Hammett remained on the farm, some three miles north-west of Huntsville, until after he had completed his majority. His education, so far as school instruction is concerned, was limited to that afforded in the log school houses of the period. But inheriting a vigorous physical constitution, which the manner of his rearing tended greatly to strengthen (for he was brought up to the labors of pioneer life), he at the same time was possessed from youth of a marked taste for mental culture, and as years advanced, by study at home and general reading, he acquired even a wider range of useful knowledge than is to be had from the ordinary college course. Favored with good natural ability, his habit of learning all that could be acquired by his opportunities resulted in making him not only a thoroughly capable business man, so far as business rules and principles are concerned, but also a citizen of superior general intelligence and information. Reared on farm, that very naturally became his calling in early manhood, and although in after years he became quite successful in other pursuits, it was in agriculture, farming and handling stock that he achieved his greatest success. On the 20th of February, 1830, he was married to Miss Mary Milsapp, of Randolph county, a lady of singular excellence of character and amiability. Before his marriage Mr. Hammett had begun life for himself, and he now went to work with redoubled energy and perseverance to establish himself comfortably as a farmer and citizen. Industry and good management steadily prospered him, and in time he took a leading position among the agriculturists of this part of the county. Before the war he dealt quite extensively in stock, mainly mules and horses, and even after the war he continued the stock business, but handled cattle principally. He was also largely interested in real estate, and dealt extensively in land. At the time of his death he owned over 6,000 acres in Randolph, Macon and Chariton counties. When it was proposed to construct the North Missouri Railroad he was one of the most earnest and active friends of the enterprise in the county, and contributed very materially to the location of the road through the center of Randolph county, or rather so that it became tributary to Huntsville. Always zealous in the cause of education he took a leading part in the establishment of Mount Pleasant College, and up to the day of his death viewed its welfare and prosperity with earnest solicitude. In short, as has been said, no man in this part of the county went before him in aid of movements for the best interests of the community in which he lived. A large stockholder in the Huntsville Savings Bank, he was for a number of years the president of that institution, and it was his well-known character and business ability that contributed in an important measure to give that institution the high reputation it enjoys in financial and business circles and with the public at large. Indeed, it seems that in every movement and enterprise with which he identified himself, he infused new life and energy, and that he made its success doubly sure. Looking back over his past and considering what he accomplished, and in view of his advantages and opportunities, it must strike the most casual observer that he was a man of talents and energies of a high order. Who can question that with such qualities of head and heart as he possessed, and with such energy and resolution, in more favorable circumstances he would have risen to more than ordinary distinction among his fellow-men? But he was not a man ambitious of fame. He sought rather to lead a life useful and just, and to accumulate by honest methods a competency for himself and something for those who were to bear his name and come after him, while making his life valuable to the community in which he lived at the same time. And if a respectable measure of wealth came to him, it came to him as a result alone of his untiring industry, his intelligence, and his sober, frugal manner of living, and not by unjustly depriving any man of a feather's value. For public office he had no ambition, preferring to lead a quiet, active life as a private citizen; and aside from a short period in the Black Hawk War and a number of years in the city council of Huntsville, to the latter of which he consented only as a matter of kindness to his neighbors and friends, he was never identified with the public service. Yet he always took an intelligent interest in public affairs, and ever threw his ballot and influence for what he conceived to be the best interests of the community, the county and the whole country. Joseph M. Hammett was a typical private citizen, a valued neighbor and an inestimable friend, and as such his name and life are worthy of all remembrance. His first wife died in 1864. To the good woman who now survives him as his widow he was married Feb. 20, 1866. She, at the time of her marriage to him, was a Mrs. Amanda LaFon, the widow of a Mr. LaFon, of this county. Of his first family of children there are five living: Francis Marion, president of the banking house of J. M. Hammett & Co.; James W., a prominent stock-dealer of the county; Benjamin F., a prominent real estate dealer of St. Louis; Charles H., cashier of the banking house of J. M. Hammett & Co.; and Jefferson D., still at home on the old Hammett homestead near Huntsville. The father was for many years a member of the M. E. Church South, and was regarded as one of the pillars of his church at this place. His life from its morning until its sun was forever set was unclouded by a just reproach, and his name goes down in the "history of Randolph County" as one of the worthiest and best citizens of the county.

ROBERT M. LAWRENCE

Mr. Lawrence came from the Blue Grass regions of Kentucky where farming and stock-raising are carried on according to the most advanced methods, and he has fully sustained the reputation of the land of his nativity in this respect, as in all others. He has one of the handsomest farms in Randolph county and by all odds the handsomest one between Sweet Spring and Silver creek. His place is beautifully located and exceptionally well improved. His fields and meadows and pastures are all being kept in good condition and are well arranged; his fences are neat and substantial, and his buildings--residence, barn and outhouses--all tastily constructed and commodious and comfortable. In a word, his farm presents a handsome picture of prosperous, progressive agriculture. Mr. Lawrence was born in Clark county, Ky., November 9, 1841, and came of one of the best families in that county. His parents were Robert and Lucy (Ecton) Lawrence, both natives of the Blue Grass State. The Lawrences, however, were originally from Virginia. The Ectons were among the pioneer settlers of Kentucky. Robert M. was reared on a farm in his native State and was 20 years of age when the war broke out in 1861. He promptly enlisted in the Confederate service and served under the Southern banner in Kentucky, Tennessee and West Virginia, principally, for three years. He was under Gen. Morgan and was with that famous cavalry leader on his memorable raid through the North. After the battle at Buffington Island, in Ohio, he, with 17 others, was captured while trying to cross the Ohio river. He was held a prisoner at Camp Chase for a short time and then transferred to Camp Douglas at Chicago, where he was confined until March, 1865, when he was exchanged at Aikins Landing on the James river, but saw no further active service in the war. Returning to Kentucky, he remained there until the fall of 1865 when he came to Missouri and located four miles south-west of Huntsville in the neighborhood of his aunts husband, John Oliver. He soon bought land and has since been engaged in farming. In March, 1879, he bought his present place, the Ivison Sears farm. This farm contains 260 acres and is one of rare beauty. Mr. Lawrence was married Feb. 7, 1868, to Miss Sarah Barbour Bratcher. She died March 2, 1882. She left him five children; Johnnie, Ecton, Frenchie, Lulu B. and Marvin. Mr. Lawrence's wife was formerly Mrs. Sarah W., the widow of George Burton. She was a daughter of William H. and Matilda (Davis) Harrison. Her first husband died in 1874. By him she has three children: Ada, Georgie and Frankie. Mrs. L. is a member of the M. E. C. P. Church and he is a member of the Old School Baptist denomination.

Mr. M. is the youngest son of Uncle Allen Mayo, as his father has been familiarly called for many years, and was born on the old family homestead, September 11, 1845. When James P. grew up, schools had been pretty generally established in the county, and were of a far superior grade to those kept in pioneer times. Besides attending the neighborhood schools, he had the benefit of two terms at a graded school at Roanoke and then of another term at Huntsville, thus getting a more than average general education. During the war, he served about eight months in the Union enrolled militia, being himself an ardent Union man. But most of the time he remained at home, having charge of the farm, and continued there until his marriage on the 15th of April, 1879. Miss Susan S. Sutliff then became his wife. She was a daughter of John and A. C. Sutliff, and her mother's maiden name was Varnum. Her father was originally from New Jersey, and her mother was of an old Pennsylvania family. Before his marriage, Mr. Mayo had bought a quarter section of his father's old homestead, and this he made into a good farm for himself. He has erected an excellent dwelling house on his place, one of the best in the vicinity, and, in a word, has made his place one of the best farms of the township. Mr. and Mrs. Mayo are members of the Missionary Baptist Church. Mr. M. is a genial, whole-souled, sociable man, and is liked by everybody. Every one has a kind word to say of "Jim Mayo."

How completely circumstances direct and control the careers of men is illustrated by the life of Dr. Scott. The great differences we observe in the stations which men occupy in the world, result not so much from original differences of talents, as from differences of circumstances tending to the development of the talents of each, and of the manner in which individuals improve such circumstances. This is the view held by Adam Smith and John Stewart Mill, Sir Isaac Newton, Sir William Jones, Dr. Johnson, Reynolds, the great English artist, and most of the great minds of all countries. Dr. Scott has become one of the leading dentists of North-east Missouri, and his name is recognized as authority in his profession, wherever he is known. Yet, but for slight circumstances, he would have been a farmer today, and doubtless a successful one. He was reared a farmer, and married and settled down with the view of making that his permanent calling. He was following farming and getting on satisfactorily well when his health failed and he had to turn his attention to something else for the support of his family. He was then living near Warrenton, and there was a dentist at Wentzville, by the name of Dr. J. C. Goodrich, who suggested the idea to him of studying dentistry. He accordingly went to work to become a dentist with that industry, application, and perseverance that never fails to bring success in any calling. The result of his embarking in this profession is known to every citizen of Huntsville and throughout the surrounding country. He has a large practice, and has made an enviable reputation in his chosen calling in life. Dr. Scott was born in Howard county, August 22, 1825, and was a son of Davis and Catherine (Woods) Scott, originally of Kentucky. The father came to Howard county as early as 1817, and was for a time in Fort Cooper. In 1830 the parents removed to Monroe county, or rather the father did, his wife having died four years before. He has since lived in that county engaged in farming. His second wife was a Miss Nancy Embree, also of Howard county. She is still living. Abbott W. was reared in Monroe county, and was married there May 14, 1846, to Miss Sarah H. Wright, originally of Bourbon county, Ky. In 1852 he went to Warren county and followed farming for some seven years but his health failing, he took up the study of dentistry, as stated above, and since that time has devoted all of his time and energy to the profession of dental surgery. He located at Huntsville in 1865, and has been there ever since. Dr. and Mrs. Scott have five children: Mary C., the wife of David Morrill, of Ralls county; Emma F., the wife of John Skinner; Ella L., James E. and Beverly P.; the last three are at home. Andrew D. is deceased, dying in 1880, at the age of 27. Dr. and Mrs. S. are members of the Christian Church, and the Doctor is a member of the Masonic order.

Maine, discussing the origin of civilization in his "Ancient Lay," says, that in the family is to be found the germ of civil society and of all systems of government known to history. In the Mosaic period it was not an uncommon thing for a single family to found a community which in time developed into a state, or local government, with all the attributes and powers of an independent people. Instances of this kind, then and indeed afterwards, are too numerous to mention. But later along still, population became so considerable that emigrations occurred in large numbers and instead of a new community being founded by a single family, a number of families would go out into a new land and establish a colony. And this system of colonization, or the settlement of a new country by a part of the people from an older one, has been and still is history repeating itself from the beginning. Thus Southern Europe was settled and Northern and Western Europe and all other countries under the sun; and in common with the history of the settlement of other countries, this is the history of the settlement of our own--of every State and county and township in the Union. As heredity is a great fixed natural law, the unending manifestations of which are observable in everything around us, so every community partakes to a marked degree of the characteristics of its founders and early settlers. For instance, the early Protestant settlers of Missouri were Baptists, and hence to this day we see that the oldest communities of the State, aside from the large cities, or in other words, those which have had principally a steady, natural growth, are still essentially Baptist communities. So, Missouri was settled originally by Kentuckians and Virginians and other Southern people. Hence to this day it is essentially a Southern State. Likewise one may go into any county, and by discovering the leading characteristics of the earlier settlers, he will be able to form an accurate opinion of the character of the people at the present time. Hence it is that in writing a history of the county it is of the first importance to study the history of its early families. This, like a torch, throws a bright light on conditions and events which would otherwise be undiscoverable. It is for this reason that so much space is given in the present volume to family histories. These contain the facts which go to make up the history of the county, and the history itself is but a summarization of these facts or a short and generally imperfect statement of them. Viewing the history of a county thus, no pages in this volume can be considered better occupied than those which give a history (and, unfortunately, too short a one) of the old and representative family of Randolph county, the name of a member of which stands at the head of this sketch. Here is a family that has been identified with the county from its pioneer days,--prominently and worthily identified,--a family, the members of which, by reason of their numbers, character and influence, have done not a little to give character and direction to the community in which they have lived for so many years. It is such a family as any worthy and intelligent citizen of the county would be glad to refer to as a representative of the character, intelligence and worth of the people. An old Baptist family, to its influence is due not a little the fact that the people of Randolph county, and especially the community where it has been so long settled, are largely Baptists in religious feeling and faith. The Sears family was originally of Virginia and came to that State, then a colony, from England nearly a century before the Revolution. John Sears came out to Kentucky in an early day and settled near Bowling Green, where he reared a family of children. He was a man of strong character, great industry and superior intelligence, and was possessed of great reverence for religion, being an earnest church member himself. In his family were four sons: Hardy, Ivison, Henry and William. Henry moved from Kentucky and settled in Montgomery county, Illinois, in 1820, and became a prominent Baptist minister in Central and Southern Illinois, where he labored continuously for about the space of 40 years. He died in the year 1860, leaving a widow (who has since died) but no children. The other three came to Missouri, all settling in Randolph county, where they lived until their deaths, but William subsequently settled in Macon county and became the founder of the well known and influential Sears family of that county. He was a Baptist minister and died there at a ripe old age greatly loved and venerated for his nobility of character,

SEARS (Continued)

his Christian piety and his long and useful life. Hardy Sears, the oldest of the three brothers, was a good and true man and worthy citizen, and died in this county leaving a family of children. Ivison Sears, the next oldest of the three brothers, was married near Bowling Green, Ky., in 1817, and came to Missouri in the spring of the second year afterwards. His wife's maiden name was Sarah Ryals, of an old North Carolina family, which was of Irish descent. John Sears, the father of the four sons, came to Missouri in 1820 and died in Randolph county. Ivison Sears settled near Huntsville and improved a large farm. He became comfortably situated in life and lived here a prosperous, highly esteemed citizen until his death, or for a period of 35 years. He died in 1854. All old settlers remember him as a generous and hospitable neighbor, a worthy and useful citizen, and a kind-hearted and Christian man. His wife survived him but three years. They had a family of 13 children, namely: Matilda, who died whilst the wife of Rev. John Roan, an early Baptist preacher of the county; Martha, who died the wife of Caswell Courtney; Mary, who died whilst the wife of Valentine McCully; Theophilus became a prominent citizen of the county, and died in 1874 whilst public administrator. His son, Hon. Walker S. Sears, now represents Macon county in the Legislature; Elizabeth is the wife of John T. Cavens; Sallie A. is the wife of Henry Shepperd, of Chariton county; Malinda J. is the wife of Calvin Smith, of this county; Lewis, a Baptist minister in Texas county, this State; Albert

F., a resident of Huntsville; Woodson D., died in Gratiot Street Prison during the war. He was one of the prisoners who drew for his life at the Palmyr massacre but drew a "life-slip" and was accordingly not shot; William B., for a number of years a merchant at Renick, who died at his home in October, 1867; Milton J., the subject of this sketch, and Oliver P., of Texas county, the last two being the sixth and seventh, respectively, in the family of children, but the others being stated in the order of their birth. Rev. Milton J. Sears was born on the farm near Huntsville, January 13, 1830, and was educated at a private school, receiving an excellent general English education. Subsequently he taught school and studied for the ministry while teaching, having decided to devote himself to the service of his Maker and humanity in that sacred calling. Rev. Mr. Sears began preaching when in his nineteenth year and has continued his labors in the pulpit from that time to this. In 1850 he was ordained by Elder William Sears, his uncle, of Macon county, and by Rev. James Ratcliff. The same year of his ordination he was installed as pastor of the Silver Creek Baptist Church, and has continued in this pastorate from that time to this. For the past two years he has been engaged in evangelical work, a portion of the time in the Eastern part of the State, and the balance of the time in the Southern part, though he has continued in the pastorate of the Silver Creek Church, preaching here regularly every month.

SEARS (Continued)

The Silver Creek Church is the oldest Baptist organization in the county and his continued pastorage, now for over 30 years, shows how much he is esteemed both as a minister and a man by those who have known him longest and best. A man of sincere piety and great zeal in the cause of religion, he is at the same time an eloquent and successful preacher, and has contributed as much to the prosperity of the Baptist Church in Randolph county as any minister of his denomination within its borders. No man in the county stands higher in general confidence and esteem. Since his brother's death he has discharged the duties of public administrator, receiving the office first by appointment and subsequently being elected to it. Mr. Sears was a member of the board of trustees of Mt. Pleasant College for many years and until the college building was destroyed by fire. On the 24th of July, 1851, he was married to Miss Cynthia A. Oliver, a native of Clark county, Ky., born August 13, 1833, and the daughter of John and Cynthia Oliver who came to Randolph county in about 1837, where the father died in April, 1877, in the ninetieth year of his age. Rev. Mr. and Mrs. Sears have reared a family of seven children: Madison L., who has just retired from the real estate business at Denver, Col., and has recently located in St. Louis as special and adjusting agent for the Manufacturers Insurance Company of Boston, representing Missouri, Kansas, Nebraska, Colorado, Utah, Wyoming; Victoria A., now the wife of Felix Aubuehen, of Grenola, Kansas; Henry L., a prominent lawyer of San Francisco, Cal.; Emeline C., now Mrs. Benjamin McCrary, of Chariton county; Anna M., a graduate of Mt. Pleasant College, and at present a teacher at Huntsville; Minnie and Stella both young ladies at home. Mr. Sears is the author of the "Primitive Baptist Hymnal," a book of sacred songs used extensively in Baptist churches. It contains a number of selections of music composed by his daughter, Victoria, for some time a teacher of music at Mt. Pleasant and Hardin Colleges.

... natural resources and other advantages to be met with in the United States. He was married in 1841, in Huntsville, Va., to Miss Ellen Dyer, formerly of Virginia. A lady of most excellent qualities of mind and heart. His father was for many years an enterprising and successful farmer, and being a man of influence in the county and fine business qualifications, he was elected county clerk. This was in 1863, and young Shaefer worked in the office under his father. In 1871 young Shaefer obtained a position in the office of the State Auditor, at Huntsville, as Auditor and Collector, a position he held with satisfaction and efficiency for two years. He then engaged in business for himself and continued it for four years. In 1875 Mr. Shaefer settled up his business in which he had previously been engaged and became connected with the Mechanics' Bank, with which he was identified for over a year. Following this he was appointed to his present position at the Mechanics' Bank. During the

John C. Shaefer, the father of Charles B., was a native of Germany, and came over to this country and settled in Randolph county in an early day. He came of one of the better united classes into which society is divided in Germany, and was a man of strong character, marked intelligence and good education. Like Schurz, and thousands of other Germans of that class, he came to this country more out of his love for republican institutions than from other considerations, although, he, of course, did not fail to appreciate the incomparable natural resources and other advantages to be met with in the United States. He was married in Charlottesville, Va., to Miss Ellen Day, formerly of Virginia, a lady of many estimable qualities of mind and heart. The father was for many years an enterprising and successful farmer, and being a man of influence in the county and fine business qualifications, he was elected county clerk. This was in 1868, and young Shaefer worked in the office under his father. In 1871 young Shaefer obtained a position in Wisdom's Bank, at Huntsville, as factotum and collector, a position he held with satisfaction and efficiency for two years. He then engaged in business for himself and continued it for four years. In 1878 Mr. Shaefer settled up his business in which he had previously been engaged and became connected with the Mechanics' Bank, with which he was identified for over a year. Following this he was appointed to his present position in the Randolph Bank. Coming of the family he did, and having had the opportunities he has, it is only as was to have been expected, that he has become one of the most capable and efficient bank cashiers in this section of the State. Having been reared in the county, and been identified with business, either public or private, all his life, he has thus obtained that knowledge of the people, their reputations, characters, financial responsibilities, etc., so necessary to the successful discharge of the duties of a bank cashier. His opportunities, while in the county clerk's office, were exceptionally favorable for obtaining this information. Indeed, as is proper that he should, he has taken special pains to obtain a thorough knowledge of these facts. And it is now recognized in financial and business circles of Moberly, as we understand from leading men, that he is one of the best posted men as to the character of commercial paper made in Randolph county in the entire county. A man of high character and popular manners, and understanding the principles of banking thoroughly, he is an officer of inestimable value to the banking institution with which he is connected. Mr. Shaefer is a public-spirited gentleman, and takes a commendable interest in all matters of advantage to Moberly and Randolph county, and is ever anxious to do anything in his power for the common weal of the people among whom his whole life thus far has been spent. On the 21st of October, 1875, Mr. Shaefer was married to Miss Nannie L. Hawkins, of Keytes-

State was located Pleasantfield, in Essex county, where he ran a large woolen mill for a number of years. The son, John, was born at Pleasantfield, July 18, 1824. In 1847 the family removed to Cumberland county, Pa., and located at Newville, where the father ran a woolen mill for about 10 years. He then located in Butler county of the same State, where he was engaged in the same business until his death. He died in 1865. John Shaefer remained with his father at work in the woolen business until he was 15 years of age, when he started out for himself. Before he was 21 years of age he had built up a large woolen mill in Pennsylvania, and ran it with success for about two years. He then came West, locating at Winterville, Mo., where he was employed in putting up the machinery of a woolen mill at that place. There he erected the first woolen mill ever established west of St. Charles. In 1855 he came to Mount Airy, in Randolph county, and has been a resident of the county from that time to this, for a period now of nearly 20 years. He built a woolen mill on Silver Creek, now known as the Silver Creek Woolen Mills. Mr. S. is carried on the mill there

Mr. Sutliff's whole life has been identified with the woolen milling business. His father before him, Phineas Sutliff, was connected with the same business, and was a native of Massachusetts, coming originally of an old and worthy English family. Mr. Sutliff's mother was a Miss Susanna Teasdale, a native of New Jersey. Phineas Sutliff went to the latter State and located Bloomfield, in Essex county, where he ran a large woolen mill for a number of years. The son, John, was born at Bloomfield, July 12, 1824. In 1837 the family removed to Cumberland county, Pa., and located at Newville, where the father ran a woolen mill for about 10 years. SUTLIFF (Continued) for a period of 16 years and came to Huntsville in 1872, having previously erected the Huntsville Woolen Mill, of which he took full charge. This mill was erected by a joint stock company in which Mr. S. is a leading stockholder, and has a capacity of 340 spindles, being a one-set mill. The company represents a capital of $16,000. The mill consumes about 40,000 pounds annually. Mr. Sutliff is without question one of the most capable and skillful woolen-milling men in this section of the State, and has contributed no inconsiderable part to the energy and success which has characterized his line of industry in this county and throughout the surrounding country. He has led the way in this important branch of manufactures, and by his example others have been encouraged to engage in the same business. His removal to Huntsville was a valuable acquisition to the best interests of the place. On the 19th of August, 1846, Mr. Sutliff was married to Miss Amanda C. Varnum, whose father was one of the pioneer settlers of Butler county, Pa. Mr. and Mrs. Sutliff have six children: Enoch Phineas, Susan Sophia, Sarah Jane, William Henry, Amanda Catherine and Hattie Harriet. Mrs. S. is a member of the Old School Presbyterian Church.
