RANDOLPH COUNTY, MISSOURI

Randolph County was organized in 1829, being taken from Howard County. It was named for John Randolph of Roanoke, Virginia. When Randolph County was formed, it included Macon County and all the territory north to the Iowa line or Indian territory.

Explanatory Notes

The following 1850 Census was copied from a microfilm copy of the original census book in the National Archives at Washington, D. C. The 1850 Federal Census was the first one which listed every member of the household by name, the earlier census records having listed only the head of the family by name and the other members by age groups.

Although many libraries and historical societies own microfilm copies of the 1850 census, many persons do not have access to those records; furthermore, since the records are in the original handwriting, often poor and in very faded ink, many find it difficult to read the microfilm. It has, also, been found that if one will read through the entire census for a county, he will often find records of family connections he had not realized were there. Families or old friends often moved in groups, or followed others to a new territory, so it is helpful to note the neighbors.

Although in the following census we have included every name given in the original census, the original record lists the names in columns, whereas we have given them in lines in order to reduce the number of pages to the book, and consequently, the price charged for the book.

The families are listed in the same order as given in the original. The number before the head of the household is the household number. For the head of the household, in addition to the age and birthplace, the occupation is given, and the dollar figure, if given, represents the assessed value of real estate. For some, no value is given. They may have been renters or may not have purchased their land by that time. If the surname or State of birth is not given, it is the same as the last preceding one. When the birthplace changes, the new State is shown. The letter (m) or (f) for male or female is shown only when the name might not indicate it.

Sometimes names were spelled several different ways, often in the way they sounded to the census taker. The reader would be wise to consider all possible spellings. For instance, a "k" was often substituted for "c" or an "f" for "ph" and vice versa. An "s" was sometimes dropped from the end of a name where it is always used today. The compilers have copied the names the way they appear in the original record.
