Hillside Home School, Hillside, Wis. The Hillside Home School is situated in the picturesque, historic valley, formerly known as the Hienna Valley, but now called the Hillside Valley. The school is located on a fine fertile dairy farm of 80 acres, well stocked, and equipped with fine commodious farm buildings, two wells with a large reservoir excavated in the solid rock, as are also its vegetable cellars. A large greenhouse furnishes winter vegetables, etc. In the school plant proper, which is steam heated and gas lighted, there are three large buildings and three smaller ones. The gymnasium and the laboratories are thoroughly equipped with all that is necessary for good work. The school does high grade preparatory work and its diploma gains entrance to our leading Universities and Colleges east and west. It also gives good industrial training in Agriculture, Manual Training, Home Science, Arts and Crafts. Its Music Department gives fine advantages in voice and piano. The school is non-sectarian but thoroughly religious; co-educational and open to all ages. Emphasis is placed upon character building—the result of a trained hand, a cultured mind and a seeing eye. The school has drawn pupils from nearly
