PREFACE

The early history of San Joaquin County, one of the original twenty-seven California counties organized by an act of the state legislature on February 18, 1850, is closely associated with the history of the fabulous California Gold Rush. The City of Stockton, lying at the eastern edge of a myriad of waterways formed by the confluence of two huge river systems, the San Joaquin and the Sacramento, was designated the seat of government of the new county, and it grew rapidly as thousands of gold-seekers converged upon the bustling city on their way to make their fortunes in the "Mother Lode." Outlying settlements developed at the same time around the numerous ferries that were quickly established to transport these argonauts across the rivers to the hinterland. And not a few of these would-be miners, realizing that the real "gold" was to be found in the rich soil of the lowlands rather than in the gravel beds and the quartz deposits of the Mother Lode, came back out of the hills and took up farming.

Thus the fascination which the Mother Lode has held for the generations which followed these hardy pioneers has naturally included a lively interest in the history of San Joaquin County as well. Genealogists as well as history buffs have continued through the years to search the primary source materials of this county as they seek to trace the movement and settlement of these pioneers in this land of El Dorado.

The San Joaquin Genealogical Society, realizing that the history of San Joaquin County is of vital importance in helping to piece together the story of this great migration to the far western shores of North America, and continuing its objective of making local historical source materials more readily available to the general public, presents its eighth volume in its continuing series of vital statistics publications. This volume, entitled Indexed Probate Records, spans the first fifty records of county record-keeping--from 1850 through 1900. Until 1879 probate matters in San Joaquin County were handled by a special Probate Court, and from 1880 to the present day this function of local government has been handled on an annual, rotating basis by the judges of the Superior Court.

Entries in this Index are arranged in chronological order within each letter of the alphabet, with the court file number for each case preceding the surname of the subject. Following the surname is the court's reference to the type of action involved (e.g., "Dec'd." refers to the simple petition for the probate of a will; "Inc." refers to the request for appointment of an administrative guardian for a property owner declared incompetent; "Minor" refers to the petition of an adult to be appointed legal guardian to a minor holding title to property). The last column (Book A through Book F) cites the location of the original records in the County Clerk's office.

Because surnames with prefixes (e.g., Van Allen) were sometimes entered under the surname and sometimes under the prefix, a cross-reference list of these prefixes and surnames has been inserted at the end of this volume.

The Society wishes to thank the County Clerk, Mr. Ralph W. Epperson, for making the official index available for reproduction and publication. Members who contributed their time in the preparation of this volume include Mrs. Lois Tillotson, who typed the stencils, Mrs. Harriet Hubbard, Mrs. Roberta McKenzie, and Mr. G. Roy Hurlburt. For their time and effort the Society is very grateful.
