HILL CEMETERY-TEMPLE

Located about a mile- more or less- from the point where the Temple Road to the village and the Varnum Pond Road meet. Proceed on the Varnum Pond Road past five houses- then turn right on a dirt road- go up the hill and just beyond the house on on the left- is the cemetery on the right. An iron fence and gate. It is from this cemetery and the Quaker cemetery that the Register of April- 1958 published some data about the Hathaways- Farmers- Motts.

(This is a dog's grave: the stone like the master's. The doctor was called one night but the dog protested to such a degree that the horse could not leave. Later they found the bridge washed out. Dr. M. planned then to have the dog buried with him.)

THE MOTT CEMETERY-A QUAKER CEMETERY

This cemetery is located on the town line of Temple and Wilton. There was once a meeting house here and the cemetery was then in the rear.

It is reached from route 43 by turning left at the apple farm belonging to the late Alvin Smith and proceeding uphill until one arrives at the town line.

There were many slate rock stones which if they were once marked are no longer legible.

EAST WILTON CEMETERY-INCORPORATED

Located in East Wilton -route 4 from Farmington toward Wilton- at East Wilton P.O. turn left over bridge over river- turn left again and go under railroad bridge. Not a very prosperous area but it was once. Here was the first settlement when people from Dunstable and towns in Mass. were first granted land there.

The cemetery is on the right. This is by far the best kept cemetery that I have found - not excepting Riverside in Farmington. There is a large fountain which plays in summer- fed by a natural spring; a large flower urn, given by The Women's Relief Corps (Auxiliary of the G.A.R. and still in existence.) This was given in memory of The Unknown Dead from Wilton. It is well landscaped with cedar trees of great size, maples and spruce trees. A granite wall is in front on which is superimposed an iron fence. There is a receiving tomb which was the gift of Jonathan C. Phillips in 1896.

It is a very large cemetery and still in use today although Wilton has another very large cemetery- Lakeview- overlooking Wilson Lake.
