"Young Married Couples of 1937 Had Many More Problems Facing Them Than Do Newlyweds of Today.

1937 - Let us take a moment to consider the life of the young married couple of 1937...a snug little apartment, completely modern from the electric refrigerator, toaster, percolator, mixer and stove to the lovely walnut radio that picks up foreign stations...the groceries delivered to the door, some prepared for the table...With an electric washer and ironer or the laundry sent out...soft shaded lights...a lovely shining car...drive to Kansas City to buy the latest fashioned clothes...returning home easily in one day.

With this in mind we will turn back thru the years to the early thirties of 1800, when Alexander Dockery, and Patsy Embry, his wife, came from Garret County, Kentucky, bringing their family. This family settled in north part of Livingston County. Our story centers around the youngest daughter of this couple, Annie Dockery, who was born in Garret County, Ky. in the year 1920 and came to this county with her parents in the early thirties of 1800 and who married Henry Gee, son of William Gee, who came here in 1832. This couple was the grandparents of Mrs. Nell (Gee) Burgess and an interview with her reveals their life.

After the wedding of Mr. and Mrs. Henry Gee the first step was to get a home. First must be an application to the government for a patent or a purchase of the land which was to be their farm. This application, one of the first locally was made in 1839. In the mean time the husband walked two miles and a half to a place known as Craig Bluff on Grand River where he worked from 5 A. M. to 9 P. M. as a butcher at a wage of 50¢ per day. He was one of the best workers and received a better wage than some of the other workers who received only 25¢ per day.

With the money he obtained in this manner he paid the government $1.25 per acre for the 40 acres of land he received.

After the Gees' had worked and saved the money to purchase the land, they had no mail routes or telephones and the land office was located in Lexington, the problem of communicating with the government land office and making the purchase confronted them. Mr. Gee made all of his trips to the land office on horseback. This county was then a wilderness of trees and Mrs. Burgess tells us she remembers her grandfather telling that when he stopped at night to sleep he took off his shoes and set them in the direction he was going so he would know which way to start out on his course the next morning.

After the Gses' had made the purchase of the land successfully, this young couple had to arrange for a house so they hewed out the finest white oak and black walnut for their house, at the same time clearing a little piece of ground on which to build their house. The original log house had three rooms with a fire place in the end of each and one room above the living room.

There was a lot of work to be done because the great hickory and walnut and giant oaks had to be cut and a place cleared before land was available to plant crops. These fields were tiny fields, mostly corn, hemp, flax, and a little wheat. The wheat had to be tied by hand in bundles with a wisp of the wheat straw. When the wheat was ripe it was threshed by stamping over and over the grain with horses.

Biscuit was enjoyed once a week, usually Sundays. On days other than biscuit days, they ate corn pone. For sweetening, they kept plenty of wild honey, several neighbors going together and collecting it by the barrell and hauling it in with teams.

To obtain cloth for clothing and bedding, flax and hemp were raised in addition to wool fleece from the sheep. After the flax and hemp were cut and put thru a very tedious process, Anna, the young wife, then would spin it into threads and then weave the threads into sheets, pillow slips, bed ticks, towels, and summer clothing.

For their winter clothes she took the wool that her husband sheared from the sheep, carded it, spun it, and took bark from certain trees and dyed it then wove it into lovely colored shirts for her husband and son. She wove some of the wool into tiny checked woolens for dress for herself and daughters, and also into red or white blankets for their beds and gay colored coverlets.

Their first church was God's own temple, a chosen spot in the woods where all the neighbors gathered. Here they met every Sunday with but one purpose, to serve God. They walked from miles away, usually barefoot in summer carrying their shoes, to save them.

1837...1937...What a change in the mode of living!...but in spite of all the hardships, their clothes were of the best woolens...their towels and summer clothes were of flax that our money couldn't buy...their land was of virgin soil producing an abundance of grain to the acre...their houses were of better timber than we ever see...withstanding any kind of storm or weather...they were not afraid of work and with their passing...Hail to those pioneer women who traveled from Kentucky with their husbands in a covered wagon to settle in Missouri and raised their families...alone in a wilderness with Indians near...All they knew was a life of service, a true love for their husband and children and a simple faith in God..."

"Livingston County Formed From Territory Taken Out of Two Adjoining Counties, Carroll and Chariton.

Settled by Hardy, Resolute Emigrants--Settlers, With Brave Hearts, Pushed Back Toward West the Savage Hordes That Roamed These Prairies.

The boundaries of Livingston County were fixed by an act of the general assembly, approved January 6, 1837, and the county was formed from portions of the territory of Carroll and Chariton Counties. By this same act establishing the boundaries, the county was named Livingston, in honor of Edward Livingston, Secretary of State under President Jackson, and E. V. Warren, Samuel Williams, and George W. Folger, of Carroll County, were appointed commissioners to select the seat of justice for this county, which was to be within three miles of the center of the county, and otherwise provided the courts were to be held at the house of Joseph Cox. The commissioners selected the county seat, and the government granted the site to William S. Pearl, as commissioner of the seat of Justice.

On August 7, 1837, John Graves was appointed by the County Court Trustees to lay off and sell the lots in Chillicothe, and on the same day the Court ordered that the town be called Chillicothe. No reason is assigned for the name, although it is probable the town was named after Chillicothe, Ohio, then a flourishing city of that state.

This county was settled by hardy and resolute emigrants from the older counties, as well as from Kentucky, Tennessee and other states. On the night of November 12, 1833, memorable to the early settlers of Missouri as 'The time when the stars fell', Elisha Hereford pitched his tent on Medicine Creek, eight miles east of where Chillicothe now stands. On the same night the Austins, Byrans, Blands, Lees and McCroskries camped on Shoal Creek, in the Southwest part of the County.

John Austin built the first cabin where Utica now stands. Samuel, Joseph, and William Todd, lived on the ridge west of Utica. Further west near Mooresville, lived Gilbert Woolsey, William and Thomas Reynolds, and Thomas Fields. Spence H. Gregory came here from North Carolina at an early date and settled first near Collier's mill on Medicine Creek. Elisha Hereford and Caleb Gibbons first settled near Chillicothe.

Roderick Matson and William Mead came here from New York in 1835 or 1836, and about the same time came Judge Stone and George Stone from Ohio.

John Stucky, Elijah Compton and Wesley Scott, were early settlers in Grand River Township. Thomas Stanley entered the land where Bedford now stands. A Frenchman named William Lee Barron entered the lands immediately surrounding Bedford in 1838. Spencer A. Alexander and Zante McKinney were among the early settlers in that part of the county.

John and George Munroe came here from Cooper County in 1837 and settled at the "Munroe Place" two miles west of Bedford.

The first settlers in the northeast part of the county appeared in 1837, '38, and '39, and settled in Medicine Township. William J. Wallace was the first man who made any improvement in that township. In the year of 1839 Samuel Hurst settled on the place known as the Lynn Grove Farm.

In 1842, a Mr. Work settled on what is now known as the Manning farm. In 1840 John Perkins settled on the Lightner farm. The Douglass brothers, David White, Robert Phillips, James White, John Brown, and Chapman Lightner, both of whom were soldiers in the Mexican War, all settled in that township before 1844.

In February, 1838, Frances Preston, father of Thomas A. Preston, settled in what is now Cream Ridge Township, about eight miles north of Chillicothe. Isiah Austin, settled in 1839; Gabriel May and Solomon R. Hooker, settled in the same locality about 1840. Joseph Cox built a little corn mill on Medicine Creek.

John Nave established a ranch at Spring Hill, Jackson Township, at an early day, and exchanged 'fire-water' with the Indians for their furs and Wampum. About the same time, the Blacks, Liggetts, Leepers, Daviesses, Martins, Drydens, Samuel Thompson and others settled on Indian Creek in the same township. David Girdner, father of Charles G., James M., and David Girdner, Jr., settled a few miles north of Chillicothe in 1834 and he killed many deer within the present limits of the city. John Graves, Jonathan Smith, Benjamin Harrave, John Simpson, Caleb Gibbons, Lewis M. Clark, Johnson Lucas, James and William Hutchinson were among the first to settle in the vicinity of Chillicothe.

In 1836, Caleb S. Stone, David M. Hickman, and David S. Lamm of Boone County, entered about 1500 acres of land lying immediately south of Chillicothe.
