Monroe County--A county in the northeastern part of the State, bounded on the north by Shelby and Marion; east by Ralls, south by Audrain and west by Randolph and Shelby Counties.

Prior to the settlement of the section of Missouri now within the limits of Monroe County, it was the hunting ground of the Indians, the tribe known as the Missouris occupying it until driven away by the Iowas, Sacs and Foxes. Just who was the first white visitor to this particular section is lost to tradition. No permanent settlement was made by white man until 1818. It is generally accepted by local historians that the first settlements were made by two families named Smith, who came from Tennessee and settled in the eastern part of the county on Salt River, and by one named Gillet, who came from some of the Eastern States and took up land on the North Fork of Salt River. There is no record to substantiate this claim. If the Smith families were the pioneers of pioneers in the county, the land records fail to show it, as they were not among the first to enter land. The original land entries on file in the United States land office at Boonville show that the first to enter land were Joseph Holliday and Bennett Goldberry, who, on December 26, 1818, entered their claims to land in Township 54, Range 8 west. The next entries were made March 29, 1819, by Andrew Rogers and David Porter, who filed on land in Township 54, Range 7 west, and in the same township, range 8 west. April 9, 1819, John Taylor filed upon land in Township 56, Range 7 west. On May 25, 1819, Alex. Clark filed upon land in the same township, and on June 7th, Daniel McCoy entered land in Township 55, Range 8 west, and three days later his brother, Joseph McCoy, filed on land adjoining. August 5, 1819, Jacob, Andrew, and Daniel Wittenburg filed upon land in Township 33, Range 12 west, and on December 11, 1819, Ezra Fox entered land in the same neighborhood. Benton R. Gillet, Jeremiah Grashong, George Markham, John Hincklin, James R. Pool and James Adams all entered land in the same neighborhood in the fall of 1819, and the entries here given comprise all that were made before 1820.

Andrew Rogers, from the many entries of land made, appears to have been much of a speculator, and while he may not have taken up his residence in the county when his first purchases were made, he did a few years later, and was prominent in the early affairs of the county, and was one of the first county justices.

The Smiths herein referred to as the pioneers were Joseph Smith, Sr., Alex. W. Smith and Joseph Smith, Jr., who settled between the Middle and North Forks of Salt River at a point now about half way between Paris and the village of Florida. They did not settle in the county before 1819. Ezra Fox and the Wittenburgs settled on land about three and a half miles east of Middle Grove. After 1820 there was a steady immigration into the county, the majority of settlers coming from Kentucky, Virginia and the Eastern States.

The pioneers were thrifty, honest and hospitable. They endured the hardships of pioneers and for many years their nearest trading point was Palmyra, to which place they carried their grain to be made into meal and flour. The first store to be established within the limits of the county was started in the fall of 1830 about half a mile from the site of the present village of Florida, by Major W. N. Penn. The territory now within the limits of Monroe County was originally in the old St. Charles District and was included in Pike County, or the "State of Pike," when that vast county was organized.

November 16, 1820, when Ralls County was organized, all of what is now Monroe County lay within its boundaries. Monroe County was out of Ralls County, by legislative act, approved January 6, 1831, and was named in honor of President James Monroe. The act named Hancock S. Jackson, of Randolph Stephen Glascock, of Ralls, and Joseph Holliday, of Pike County, Commissioners to locate a permanent set of Justice.

Those commissioners, to a meeting of the county court held in June, 1831, reported that they had accepted a tract of land in Township 54, Sections 10 and 11, Range 10 west, twenty-five acres of which had been donated by Hightown F. Hackney and wife, nine acres by James R. Abernathy and wife, and forty acres by James C. Fox and wife, and by the county court their report was approved, the tract ordered surveyed, laid out in town lots and designated as the permanent county seat.

The new town was named Paris, after Paris, Kentucky. The tract was surveyed and laid out in town lots by John S. McGee. Sylvester Hogan was appointed superintendent of buildings.

The members of the first county court were Andrew Rogers, John Curry and William P. Stephenson, who were appointed by Governor John Miller. The first county clerk was Ebenezer W. McBride. The first meeting of the court was held at the house of Green V. Caldwell, February 26, 1831. On the first Monday of April, 1831, the first election in the county was held, and Robert Simpson, Reese Davis and Andrew Rogers were elected county justices. November 7th of the same year the court met for the first time at the new county seat, Paris, at the house of Dr. Mathew Walton, where the courts met for more than a year, then met at the house of J. C. Fox, which was the regular meeting place until the first courthouse was completed.

The first circuit court for Monroe County met June 20, 1831, at the residence of Green V. Caldwell, and was presided over by Honorable Priestly H. McBride, judge of the Second Judicial District, with William Runkle, sheriff, E. M. Holden, clerk, and Ezra Hunt, circuit attorney. The members of the first grand jury were Robert Donaldson, Alex. W. Smith, Eleri Rogers, Robert Hanna, John H. Curry, Samuel Curtright, John S. McGee, Ezekiel Bryan, James L. McGee, William Wilcoxen, John Newson, John L. Grigsby, Otto Adams, J. M. Burton, Minor Perry, David A. Sloan, Michael Maupin and William P. Stephenson.

The second term of the court was held October 18, 1831, at the house of Dr. Mathew Walton, at Paris.

The first marriage in the county was performed by "Alfred Wright, minister of the gospel," who, on May 12, 1831 united in marriage James H. Smith and Rosa Ann McKeaney.

The first town laid out in the county was Florida, the birthplace of Samuel L. Clemens, known in the literary world as "Mark Twain". It was laid out in 1831 by Robert Donaldson, John Witt, Dr. Keenan, Joseph Grigsby and Hugh A. Hickman, who used their efforts to have it made the permanent seat of justice.

The first physicians in the county were Dr. Keenan, who lived at Florida, and Dr. Mathew Walton, who resided at Paris.
