THE SEPTEMBER MEETING OF THE TCGS was held at the home of Evelyn Massie and featured an unusual report of an unusual vacation trip.

When Harry Wrangham, past president of the Tri-City Genealogical Society, took his wife Norma and their son Bruce to England in June 1969, he was retracing a journey he had made with his parents when he was only nine years old. Much of it, though, extended over additional territory, especially the first part in London, where the Wranghams visited many of the famous tourist sights and brought back lasting memories in the form of bone china tableware and tape recordings of the chimes of Big Ben, the London traffic, and the voice of a cockney guide on a Thames River sight-seeing boat.

Harry sampled the possibilities of Somerset House by applying for an ancestor's death certificate, and found the red tape of the British Museum too time-consuming for the average tourist hoping to study records. The Wranghams' real research took place in country churches and cemeteries. They went "cemetery-hunting and slab-dusting" for Norma's Woolfreys at Poole, and for Marshalls at Patrington and Winestead in Yorkshire.

Wrangham country began at Middleton-Pickering. In Sunderland they found Harry's researcher-by-correspondence and were taken to visit many small churches, including the one where the Wrangham grandparents were married and where they also found a great-great-grandfather's tombstone. A cousin at Darlington helped bring the family up to date. Just before returning to America, the Wranghams visited a probable relative, the Hon. Sir Geoffrey Wrangham, and Harry recorded his delightful comments on mountain-climbing -- "something like ballet dancing, you know," and the

The Palatinate (in German, Pfalz) is the name of two German states, distinguished as the Upper Palatinate and the Lower, or Rhenish, Palatinate. The former was founded mainly by Bohemia and Bavaria, and its capital was Amberg. The Lower Palatinate proper lay on both sides of the Rhine and included the towns of Heidelberg and Mannheim. The Counts Palatine were in possession of the Palatinate and the districts belonging to it as early as the eleventh century.

During the 16th century, a large proportion of the inhabitants of the Palatinate on the Rhine joined the Reformed Church. During the Thirty Years War (1618-48) the Palatinate was repeatedly devastated by the contending armies. The pathetic Frederick the Fifth, the Winter King, took over the leadership of the Protestant cause but was badly defeated in Bohemia. General Tilly, the Catholic commander, carried the war into his own country and laid it waste. The ruined land did not fare much better when its supposed friends, the Swedes under Gustavus Adolphus, came along. The final blow came with the Spaniards under Gallas, who exceeded all their predecessors in cruelty and brutality.

The next invaders were the French and the Bavarians in 1639. Their depredations in 1644 were so thorough that they left the land practically a desert. The successor of the Winter King, the Elector Karl Ludwig, was just beginning to make some progress in restoring the land to prosperity when it was invaded by the troops of Louis XIV. The beautiful castle of Heidelberg and the city of Mannheim were burned during the winter of 1688 and 1689. The greed and cruelty of the invaders reduced the population to complete poverty.

Although Karl Ludwig had been a Catholic, he had treated the Protestants with tolerance. His fanatical successors ruled the land with an iron hand and mercilessly persecuted the Lutherans and the Reformed. It was no wonder, then, that the impoverished and wretched population should look to emigration as their only salvation. Their thoughts were turned toward America through the words of William Penn and through what seemed like an invitation from Queen Anne of England to settle in her trans-Atlantic colonies. This was due to the bond of a common Protestant faith and to the fact that the royal families were related. Elizabeth, the daughter of James I, had married Frederick V, Elector of the Palatinate, and had lived with him in Heidelberg Castle.

SOME EASTERN WASHINGTON PIONEERS

(Your editor has received a letter from Buford E. Myers, Rt. 5, Box 235, Dell Avenue, Walla Walla, Wash. 99362, so interesting that it is being published here, with Mr. Myers's permission. The BULLETIN welcomes all such accounts of early Eastern Washington families.)

My half-sister, Lena Knight Randolph, and I are working on several family connections, namely Knight, Goodwin, Alexander, Cummings, Weaver, Whetstone, Phillis, Randolph, Myers, Turners, Forneys or Forneys, all Walla Walla County pioneers except Myers, which is one of the three Myers families (not related to each other) that were in Summerville, Ore. She is also working on the Larue, Dameron, and Coppage-Coppedge families. I think your Index to the 1880 Census of Walla Walla County, Washington Territory, will be a lot of help to us.

William C. and John Benjamin Knight were brothers. W. C. Knight and G. D. Goodwin built the log cabins at Lamar, Wash., between Prescott and Burbank near the Harshaw exchange. W. C.'s wife, Didame, died there in 1869, and he died in 1873. Their tombstone is the one you can see as you travel west from Prescott towards Harshaw intersection, out in a wheat field. John B. Knight was appointed guardian of W. C.'s children.

We have just discovered that W. C. Knight had married a second time and had a child named Peter. The second wife was born Nancy Jane Braden. John B. Knight was guardian of Peter also. There were two children by the first wife. We had not known of them until they were discovered in the deed and probate records at Walla Walla. They are not mentioned in the Knight line.

Clarence Braden, who came to Walla Walla in 1900, has told me that Nancy Jane Braden, Joseph Braden and Jonathan Braden, sister and brothers, crossed the plains in 1863. He says that Peter Knight, son of W. C. Knight and Nancy Jane Braden, had two sons and moved to Portland, Ore. After the death of W. C. Knight, Nancy Jane married a Mr. Mattoon. Clarence Braden says that the Bradens settled at Lamar "because there were too many people in Walla Walla."

Would any of your members know anything more of the history of Nancy Jane or Peter Knight? Nancy was only 28 in the 1880 census. Also by our records there should have been a John Benjamin and a Phebe Knight listed in the 1880 Walla Walla County census, as they had not moved to Columbia County until 1881. The Joseph Knight must have been my sister's father, as the date and age check out.

My sister's grandmother, Phebe Knight (her name by her second marriage was Bullington), told her in 1916 that practically all the Knights there, and in Palouse and northeastern Oregon, were related. We know that "young" Bill Knight, now 104 and living in La Grande, Ore., is her fourth cousin. He came over the plains in 1865. He was born in Missouri in February 1865. My sister's grandparents came in 1864. Bill does have this mixed up, as he says they all came in 1865. But Clarence Cummings told me that there was more than one wagon train of Knights and their relatives in different years -- 1861 (?), '62, '64 and '65.

Joseph Dameron Knight, buried in Palouse cemetery, was captain of the 1865 train. He had been to California in gold rush days; we guess that is why he was captain. A man known to us only as Jack was captain of the 1864 train of 164 wagons.

We both should have had a lot more information from the old people. But when you are adopted, it is difficult. Mother's first husband died in 1900 when my sister was two. Mother and the four grandparents could not agree about the children, so she put them out for adoption. She married my father in 1904 and died in 1911. Although my maternal grandparents lived in the town I was raised in, Mother gave me to people by the name of West to raise. After this kind of experience we had very little incentive along family lines. I was raised near Seattle, and the rest of the children at Dayton and Addy, Wash. Not until about 1966 did we care about family lines and had not written down very much of what we had been told.

We have traced the Knight line and can prove by deeds, probate, marriage bonds, etc. to 1811, and then by Judith Dameron's marriage to Joseph Knight on back to about 1570. My half-sister is Mrs. Lena Knight (Messer, by adoption) Randolph. Her father was Joseph Michael Knight, her grandfather John Benjamin Knight; her great-grandfather Joseph Dameron Knight; and her great-great-grandparents Joseph Knight and Judith Dameron.

Charts in this department are those of members and their spouses. Numbering is that used on most commercial pedigree charts. The person submitting the chart is 1, his father is 2, his mother is 3, his paternal grandfather 4, etc. A person's father always has double his own number, and his mother's number is his own, doubled, plus 1.

SOCIETY MEMBERS PUBLISH

One member of the Tri-City Genealogical Society has published a family history this year, and another has a volume almost ready for the society's press. A WILLIAMS CHRONICLE, DESCENDANTS OF THOMAS WILLIAMS OF SULLIVAN COUNTY, N. Y., AND JEFFERSON COUNTY, PA., was published by Frances Hansen Ehrig, editor of the BULLETIN, in August. A LARKINS GENEALOGY -- ELDRIDGE LARKINS AND ELIZABETH BLEDSOE AND THEIR DESCENDANTS will be published by December 1 by Winniferd Eyrich Perrigo and Lyle D. Perrigo. Lyle, president of the TCGS, is collaborating with his mother in writing the book.

A WILLIAMS CHRONICLE includes pioneer families of Horton, Morris, Hickox, Foster, Elwood, Rice, Zum Brunnen, Nolph, Crissman, Hastings, Edelblute, McKnight, and many others. It traces all known descendants of Thomas Williams Jr. and his wife Maria Quick, who emigrated from the lumbering region of southeastern New York State to a similar area in Jefferson County, Pa., before 1830. Birth, marriage, and death dates and places are included wherever they are known, as well as the person's education, occupation, religion, and military service. Some branches of the family moved on to Green County, Wis., Montgomery County, Iowa, and Converse and Niobrara Counties, Wyo.

The book was printed on the TCGS's offset press, and consists of 198 pages, ten maps, ten photographs and many incidental illustrations. All surnames are indexed. In library binding, 8½ x 11 inches, it sells at $6.00 per copy, postpaid, and may be ordered from Mrs. J. W. Ehrig, Rt. 1, Box 191, Richland, Wash. 99352.

A LARKINS GENEALOGY will be reviewed in the January BULLETIN.

INSCRIPTION ON TOMBSTONE IN CHURCHYARD OF PARISH CHURCH, GAINFORD, DURHAM, ENGLAND, COPIED BY HARRY H. WRANGHAM:

In Remembrance of Thomas Williamson, late of Summer House
Died 9 September 1777, Age 65

My sledge and hammer lie declined
My bellows have quite lost their wind
My fires extinct
My forge decayed
My vices in the dust all laid
My coal is spent
My irons gone
My nails are drove
My work is done
My fire-dried corpse
Lie here at rest
My soul, smokelike, soars to be blest.

INDEX TO THE 1880 CENSUS OF WALLA WALLA COUNTY, WASHINGTON TERRITORY

Seventy-nine pages, more than 8,800 names
Includes every name, not just heads of households
Includes age given for each individual

$5.00 postpaid.

Walla Walla County was organized as part of Oregon Territory in 1854 and was one of the original counties when Washington Territory was formed. Called The Cradle of Northwest History, it was the site of the Whitman Mission, where the massacre of 1847 took place; Old Fort Walla Walla, outpost of the Hudson's Bay Company; and a frequent stopping place for pioneers following the Oregon Trail.

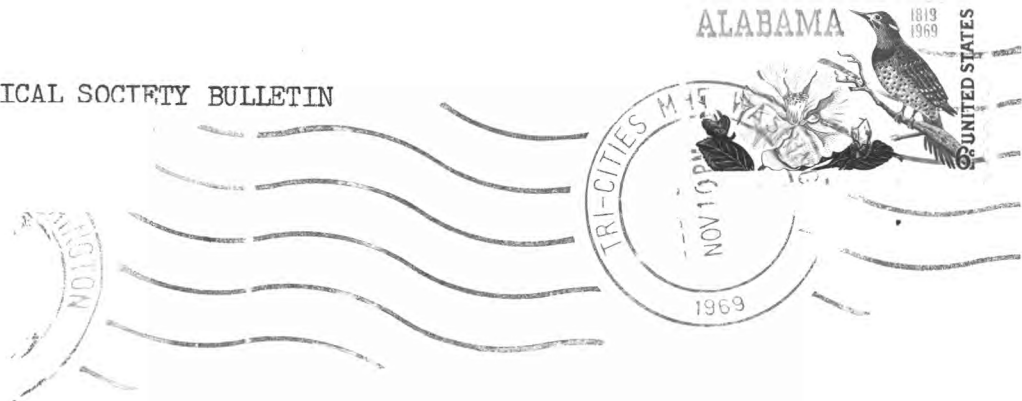

Mimeographed, 8½ x 11, soft covers.
