

From "Business Biographies" in the Farm Bureau News, Aug. 24, 1933
The Farm Bureau News was published by the Island County Farm Bureau in Oak Harbor, WA between 1920 and 1950.

DR. E. C. GLOSSOP

"I came to Holmes Harbor for a vacation this spring, got tired of doing nothing and decided to start practice in Oak Harbor."

That, in a few words, is Dr. E. C. Glossop's explanation of how he happened to establish his dentistry office in Oak Harbor. Dr. Glossop had been practicing in Seattle since 1926, but the work was too strenuous, due to after-hours work and the rush of the metropolis.

"My work here is more like a vacation," Dr. Glossop smiled, "but I like it here very well and think Oak Harbor is a good place in which to live."

Dr. Glossop was born in 1898 in Illinois and came West at the age of 12 years. The Glossops first settled on a homestead near Grants Pass, Oregon, where they lived until his mother recovered from an illness. They later moved to Marshfield, Oregon, where Glossop attended school.

He attended Oregon Agricultural College for three years and after working a few years went to the North Pacific Dental College where he was graduated in 1925. He began practice at Baker, Oregon in 1926 and later moved to Seattle where he was married.

"I enjoy fishing very much," Dr. Glossop said, "And it was by spending my vacations at Holmes Harbor that I got acquainted with Whidby Island."

Dr. and Mrs. Glossop have lived in Oak Harbor since June.

Dr. Glossop belonged to the Student Army Training Corps while attending Oregon Agricultural College in 1919, but armistice was declared before he saw active service.

DR. E. C. GLOSSOP

"I came to Holmes Harbor for a vacation this spring, got tired of doing nothing and decided to start practice in Oak Harbor."

That, in a few words, is Dr. E. C. Glossop's explanation of how he happened to establish his dentistry office in Oak Harbor. Dr. Glossop had been practicing in Seattle since 1926, but the work was too strenuous, due to after-hours work and the rush of the metropolis.

"My work here is more like a vacation," Dr. Glossop smiled, "but I like it here very well and think Oak Harbor is a good place in which to live."

Dr. Glossop was born in 1898 in Illinois and came West at the age of 12 years. The Glossops first settled on a homestead near Grant's Pass, Oregon, where they lived until his mother recovered from an illness. They later moved to Marshfield, Oregon, where Glossop attended school.

He attended Oregon Agricultural College for three years and after working a few years went to the North Pacific Dental College where he was graduated in 1925. He began practice at Baker, Oregon, in 1926 and later moved to Seattle where he was married.

"I enjoy fishing very much," Dr. Glossop said, "And it was by spending my vacations at Holmes Harbor that I got acquainted with Whidby Island."

Dr. and Mrs. Glossop have lived in Oak Harbor since June.

Dr. Glossop belonged to the Student Army Training Corps while attending Oregon Agricultural College in 1918, but armistice was declared before he saw active service.